

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Drop from High School

fabio19674 - June 25, 2017, 8:05 am

As I remember myself since I was 9 I hated the school never did homework, I do not consider myself as smart either as dumb, I enjoyed reading books since I was 8 but the whole thing with the school wasn't for me I didn't go to school for days since like 9 y/o.

And now at my 11 class in feeling like I should drop out having too much to learn and I do not learn anything of it have too many tests I feel like I will fail and will have to do the class once again.

I Don't want to work as high tech or smth cause I feel like that's not for me.

Should I drop?

Ger? - June 25, 2017, 8:09 am

I dropped out of highschool and now i play rs all day in my moms basement and smoke hella blunts id say it was worth

Freakyy - June 25, 2017, 8:10 am

No, You shouldn't. You're not the only person who has to go to school and you shouldn't quit because you're not the only one who hates school. Just get it over with.

(Jun 25, 2017 08:09 AM)Ger? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I dropped out of highschool and now i play rs all day in my moms basement and smoke hella blunts id say it was worth very productive lifestyle.....

SirAndrew - June 25, 2017, 8:11 am

Either stay in school and get your diploma, or stay at home and buy one (hint I sell novelty diplomas lol) but the school experience is good for you, I wouldn't just throw it away man.

fabio19674 - June 25, 2017, 8:13 am

(Jun 25, 2017 08:11 AM)andyouthere Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Either stay in school and get your diploma, or stay at home and buy one (hint I sell novelty diplomas lol) but the school experience is good for you, I wouldn't just throw it away man.

You see the thing is that i feel i won't work as someone who needs this diploma,I'm not interested in working whole day for some money i consider those people prostitutes of the system

possomman - June 25, 2017, 9:37 am

Don't drop. Finish. Dropping out won't get you anywhere if you don't already have a plan, and it doesn't sound like you do.

Anticipate - June 25, 2017, 10:16 am

Just finish HS. You'll regret not finishing that joke of a system when you're older, and wished you just kept going for another year. And for Christ's sake, it's a free education. Nothing shows lack of discipline like someone who doesn't have their HS diploma because of reasons other than being a genius or incredible opportunities elsewhere.

kpown - June 25, 2017, 10:21 am

(Jun 25, 2017 08:13 AM)Yung r0ma Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You see the thing is that i feel i won't work as someone who needs this diploma,I'm not interested in working whole day for some money i consider those people prostitutes of the system

This is the most incredibly stupid mindset I've ever heard in my life

FamousHater - June 25, 2017, 10:22 am

(Jun 25, 2017 08:10 AM)Freakyy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) No, You shouldn't. You're not the only person who has to go to school and you shouldn't quit because you're not the only one who hates school. Just get it over with.

very productive lifestyle.....he was joking.

he is very productive at burger king

Tohka - June 25, 2017, 10:23 am

If you gonna drop out I'd recommend taking the GED test to at least get your diploma.

?Lucky Luciano - June 25, 2017, 10:24 am

If you don't want to go to college, whatever. At least get your diploma though.

Just cause you march to the beat of your own drummer doesn't mean others aren't going to think of you as a nimwit for not finishing high school. And whether you like it or not, connections and what people think of you matters a lot in this world, especially if you expect to make bread without an education.

Eagerkid - June 25, 2017, 10:25 am

Some people dont work well in the school system. But I have found a TON of people want to drop out because Bill gates did and a lot of these billion/millionaires and that is totally the wrong idea. If you dont like school, then you should just man up and finish it. If school is not productive for you (meaning you are smarter than the other students, or are doing other projects that you think in the future will excel then drop out)

HOWEVER, most people graduate high-school because its not hard to run a full time business and graduate. College is where it gets tough so you find a lot of smart drop outs.

My guess is you should stay in school and at least finish highschool

Underworldproblem - June 25, 2017, 10:46 pm

Someone mind explaining why people in first world countries that are provided free public education don't want to take advantage of it? People in developing or third world countries would die to just be in any sort of school.

Besides that, at least get a high school diploma.

Deany - June 25, 2017, 10:48 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 10:46 PM)Albertson Doge Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Someone mind explaining why people in first world countries that are provided free public education don't want to take advantage of it? People in developing or third world countries would die to just be in any sort of school.

Besides that, at least get a high school diploma.
Lack of motivation/drive.

Mr.Peanut - June 25, 2017, 10:54 pm

I'm not going to go into this right now but just remember that everyone is different. Everyone has their own motives, drives, and discipline. There are many real world factors, but anything is possible if you're committed enough. With that being said, I dropped out of highschool. Got my GED, enrolled in College and dropped. I'm doing really really well right now, I don't talk about it much but i'm doing better than any of my friends and things are really promising.

I made the decision off many factors. Don't just drop without wanting to do something that's promising in your eyes and something you're good at. Always question things and be open to the reality compared to your perception.

So much to write, I won't though.

Underworldproblem - June 25, 2017, 10:55 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 10:48 PM)Japanese Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Lack of motivation/drive.

Thinking about it further, the motivation/drive aspect is built during a child's youth so I guess so. I guess it has to do with how people are raised, idk.

Mr.Peanut - June 25, 2017, 10:57 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 10:55 PM)Albertson Doge Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Thinking about it further, the motivation/drive aspect is built during a child's youth so I guess so. I guess it has to do with how people are raised, idk.

It can be developed at any age though. I think you're thinking about mental discipline. Some people who have no other option but to succeed (eventually) will do all it takes. It's amazing what circumstance can do to one (mentally)

Underworldproblem - June 25, 2017, 11:00 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 10:57 PM)Mr.Peanut Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It can be developed at any age though. I think you're thinking about mental discipline. Some people who have no other option but to succeed (eventually) will do all it takes. It's amazing what circumstance can do to one (mentally)

Yeah, I was. Thanks for clarifying, I like the perspective you pointed out.

X X X X - June 25, 2017, 11:01 pm

Go ahead. I also don't like pickles on my burger. Extra ketchup please.

Underworldproblem - June 25, 2017, 11:03 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 11:01 PM)X X X X Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Go ahead. I also don't like pickles on my burger. Extra ketchup please.

Lmao, harsh. My Spanish teacher would call kids with bad grades, "burger flippers".

X X X X - June 25, 2017, 11:03 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 11:03 PM)Albertson Doge Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Lmao, harsh. My Spanish teacher would call kids with bad grades, "burger flippers"?

Now that's fucked up if a teacher does it lmao.

An?iety - June 25, 2017, 11:05 pm

I dropped out got my ged shit is cash

Mr.Peanut - June 25, 2017, 11:06 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 11:01 PM)X X X X Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Go ahead. I also don't like pickles on my burger. Extra ketchup please.

People with this perception of how life works will be average at best in society. I hate to say it but it's the truth. My 10th grade Alg 2 teacher said I'd be a sandwich artist. I'm 19 and I'm making more money than he is (legally). I'm 19, he was like 45. I'm just getting started.

Deany - June 25, 2017, 11:07 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 10:55 PM)Albertson Doge Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Thinking about it further, the motivation/drive aspect is built during a child's youth so I guess so. I guess it has to do with how people are raised, idk.

Correct. All the reason why parents should motivate their children telling them make money their goal. Without money = end up homeless, have nothing in this world.

Mr.Peanut - June 25, 2017, 11:08 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 11:00 PM)Albertson Doge Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah, I was. Thanks for clarifying, I like the perspective you pointed out.

No worries man, your attempt to explain/understand it was just, it's just slightly off.

(Jun 25, 2017 11:07 PM)Japanese Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Correct. All the reason why parents should motivate their children telling them make money their goal. Without money = end up homeless, have nothing in this world.

I think parents should teach their kids to be driven/motivated but more importantly to be trained to be disciplined. If money is all one chases, they may very well be unhappy at the end of their road. Creativity/Drive/Motivation usually comes from a passion. Not saying any passion will get you rich and do well but it's usually a solid balance of being happy and making enough if not extra. Because you can still do what you'd like without it being a profession I presume.

I'm happy that business is an actual passion I have. It's not just the unlimited 'potential' of money but I mean even the discussions, the black & white books that are hundreds of pages, those 1-2 hour podcasts, etc.

Armada - June 25, 2017, 11:14 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 08:13 AM)Yung r0ma Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You see the thing is that i feel i won't work as someone who needs this diploma,I'm not interested in working whole day for some money i consider those people prostitutes of the system

So what exactly is your plan to support yourself in life then?

Despite what most people say, Dropping out of high school is not the end of the world.

I dropped out of high school in grade 11. But I also went and enrolled in College and got a Degree in Networking. After you have post secondary education, no employer gives a damn about High school.

However, on that note, without a education, you can expect to be likely making minimum wage, and likely in a job you are going to hate. There is no substitute to looking out for your own future.

Deany - June 25, 2017, 11:14 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 11:08 PM)Mr.Peanut Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) No worries man, your attempt to explain/understand it was just, it's just slightly off.

I think parents should teach their kids to be driven/motivated but more importantly to be trained to be disciplined. If money is all one chases, they may very well be unhappy at the end of their road. Creativity/Drive/Motivation usually comes from a passion. Not saying any passion will get you rich and do well but it's usually a solid balance of being happy and making enough if not extra. Because you can still do what you'd like without it being a profession I presume.

I'm happy that business is an actual passion I have. It's not just the unlimited 'potential' of money but I mean even the discussions, the black & white books that are hundreds of pages, those 1-2 hour podcasts, etc.

Yup, I agree with this.

But the harsh reality is that without money you're nothing in this world.

Although, doing something you enjoy while getting paid for it is just the cherry on the top.

X X X X - June 25, 2017, 11:18 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 11:08 PM)Mr.Peanut Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) No worries man, your attempt to explain/understand it was just, it's just slightly off.

I think parents should teach their kids to be driven/motivated but more importantly to be trained to be disciplined. If money is all one chases, they may very well be unhappy at the end of their road. Creativity/Drive/Motivation usually comes from a passion. Not saying any passion will get you rich and do well but it's usually a solid balance of being happy and making enough if not extra. Because you can still do what you'd like without it being a profession I presume.

I'm happy that business is an actual passion I have. It's not just the unlimited 'potential' of money but I mean even the discussions, the black & white books that are hundreds of pages, those 1-2 hour podcasts, etc.

Did you drop out of high school?

Mr.Peanut - June 25, 2017, 11:36 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 11:18 PM)X X X X Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Did you drop out of high school?

I did, my credits were behind so I could either re-do my 11th grade year while my peers graduated (even though somehow my ID and other things classified me as a Senior), or I could of dropped out & not fall behind a year (for something that would have no merit assuming I would've got my GED and finished College).

Ahmad - June 26, 2017, 11:39 am

It's highschool, get through it so you atleast have a diploma

bdawn - June 26, 2017, 11:46 am

I'd advise that you think this through. Finishing HS is not "necessary" but in order to venture too far, you do need a plan. Don't drop out of HS without a plan because its "tough". Life will only get tougher. Will you drop out of future hardships because its "tough"? There are some things later on where you aren't able to drop.

If you don't have a plan after dropping out, I highly advise you continue and get your Diploma. If not that, at least your GED (If you know your stuff (don't even to know calculus), getting a GED isn't tough at all).

fabrivolpe - June 26, 2017, 1:54 pm

Man I feel you. I think that the global education system is very outdated and really doesn't give you the tools you need for real life. That said, I would suggest you stick it out and finish high school since most people still give it a lot of weight. I would start a business or something like that in the meantime and don't give school that much importance. If you like you can check this website to kinda start looking at business opportunities: onmarkprofessionals.com

Freakyy - June 26, 2017, 2:00 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 11:14 PM)Armada Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I dropped out of high school in grade 11. See that shit makes no fucking sense to me at all. You did all of those years in school and you were two years away and you basically decided to waste it when you were basically done. I literally fucking hated school and barely attended class but I knew I had to finish because all the years I basically did would be a waste and you're not going anywhere without a diploma.

SIM-2502833 - June 26, 2017, 2:03 pm

I dropped out in the middle of my senior year, went into homeschool promising myself I would finish, then had 95% truancy, got expelled, somehow got back in 2 weeks before the homeschool ended and graduated.

During that period I got a chance to smoke a lot of weed, worked 3 different jobs that gave me a ton of experience in the workplace and with negotiating wages and such with superiors, and technician experience, and now I leave for the military in about a month, after training they will pay for my bachelors.

It worked out for me, but not everyone is so lucky.

Think it out wisely OP.

Ger? - June 26, 2017, 3:44 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 08:10 AM)Freakyy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) No, You shouldn't. You're not the only person who has to go to school and you shouldn't quit because you're not the only one who hates school. Just get it over with.

very productive lifestyle.....

how much you want to bet i get more money than you do at your shitty job

Mr.Peanut - June 26, 2017, 9:53 pm

(Jun 26, 2017 02:00 PM)Freakyy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) See that shit makes no fucking sense to me at all. You did all of those years in school and you were two years away and you basically decided to waste it when you were basically done. I literally fucking hated school and barely attended class but I knew I had to finish because all the years I basically did would be a waste and you're not going anywhere without a diploma.

Everyone has a different scenario man. I dropped out of school my 11th grade. I didn't want to fall behind, those who drop out usually are lacking the grades to exceed to the next level of whatever grade (or getting their diploma). I dropped because staying would of delayed things for a mere diploma (had intentions of getting a college degree so it wouldn't of mattered).

If I had to talk to my past self (9th grade/10th grade), I wouldn't tell myself I dropped out. I'd let life take it's course. Those 2-3 years may seem like a "waste" but in reality you're still learning, growing, figuring out who you are and what you want to do in life, etc.

Mustys - June 27, 2017, 8:42 am

Education is not necessarily needed, but having an education is never wrong.

If you know what you wanna do, and how to get there - follow your dreams boy!

PS! 200 posts ?

t0rch - June 27, 2017, 8:46 am

I'd say just get it over with but to be honest high school isn't important. If post secondary is something you've desired for a long time then dropping out will most likely jeopardize your chances of getting into any bigger schools, however you'll still be able to get into many post-secondary institutions if you have your high school equivalency. It all depends on what YOU want to do with your life.

Cute - June 27, 2017, 8:48 am

Anyone who drops out of High school is an actual moron, have fun living in your moms basement the rest of your life.

Genicus - June 27, 2017, 8:50 am

(Jun 26, 2017 03:44 PM)Ger? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) how much you want to bet i get more money than you do at your shitty job

Bro cmon, You know damn well if someone sees you even making 1million a month theyre just gonna tell you to get a real job.

t0rch - June 27, 2017, 8:58 am

(Jun 27, 2017 08:48 AM)Cute Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Anyone who drops out of High school is an actual moron, have fun living in your moms basement the rest of your life.

Wew someone's edgy.

High School is more about indoctrination than it is about the acquisition of knowledge. I've learned far more since dropping out than I ever did at the snail pace of high school. Which didn't even offer any tech courses.

Modern day Hippy - June 27, 2017, 9:10 am

(Jun 25, 2017 08:09 AM)Ger? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I dropped out of highschool and now i play rs all day in my moms basement and smoke hella blunts id say it was worth vouch for this method. Worked with me

vaiperboy - June 27, 2017, 9:15 am

(Jun 25, 2017 08:13 AM)Yung r0ma Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You see the thing is that i feel i won't work as someone who needs this diploma,I'm not interested in working whole day for some money i consider those people prostitutes of the systemyou seem to be listening to too much rap lately these "prostitutes of the system" are the people who feed their families, and without them, well, they wouldn't proper lives

so stop with the fancy words and just stay in the damn school like everybody else, you're no different of us

t0rch - June 27, 2017, 9:26 am

(Jun 27, 2017 09:15 AM)vaiperboy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) you seem to be listening to too much rap lately these "prostitutes of the system" are the people who feed their families, and without them, well, they wouldn't proper lives

so stop with the fancy words and just stay in the damn school like everybody else, you're no different of us

I agree with the first part of your post and was about to rep you for the "You seem to be listening to too much rap lately" part, but then I read the second part of your post. What fancy words are you referring to? That was one of the most illiterate posts I've ever read.

No offense mate but I just had to ask. I see this all the time online, people complaining of other people's choice of words as though their articulacy intimidates them. Almost as bad as the trend of hating math.

In reply to what Yung r0ma originally said, can't say I entirely understand people who DON'T want to work until they die. I'll be working in some capacity until I die. Whether it be computer programming, teaching, or studying the inner workings of the universe.

Terms Of Service - June 27, 2017, 9:31 am

Finish high school. Making it without education is very rare and even then you still have to put a lot of work into your craft to achieve a good life. There is never a easy way out and dropping out is very very stupid imo.

fabio19674 - June 27, 2017, 11:24 am

(Jun 27, 2017 09:15 AM)vaiperboy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) you seem to be listening to too much rap lately these "prostitutes of the system" are the people who feed their families, and without them, well, they wouldn't proper lives

so stop with the fancy words and just stay in the damn school like everybody else, you're no different of us
you got me :(

UrNotFuKing - June 28, 2017, 12:41 am

It's not a good idea to drop out, unless you have a sure business idea you want to pursue.

test - June 28, 2017, 12:46 am

Stay in school and graduate. Just because you hate it, doesn't mean it won't benefit you later down the line. I hated school too but stuck to it because it is incredibly difficult to get even remotely close to a job without a diploma or whatever you call it in the states. Unless you are extremely good at a specific thing and have hookups for work or have a specific plan in life that doesn't require a diploma, stay in school. Think of your future.

novuw - June 29, 2017, 11:31 am

Similar situation; would highly recommend finishing. I've talked to industry professionals, and most of them say they call the GED the "Good Enough Degree." That is not to say I agree with them, but it's what I've heard.

Personally, I think the GED is a fine option, but if you want future "high-level employment options" to get a foot in the door, then I would say it's wise to stay.

Unfortunately, most employers and colleges are not open-minded to the degree that some entrepreneurs (see Elon Musk) are. In the coming years, skills will be more important, I think.

My advice, and it's just a thought, is to stay in school, turn in your work, and teach yourself meaningful skills. Use the time to build a revenue stream. That way, when you are forced to provide for yourself, you're prepared. In addition, you're making good use of the time.

?Ñâzg?! - July 2, 2017, 1:50 am

(Jun 27, 2017 11:24 AM)Yung r0ma Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) you got me :(
well no you're right working for others is modern day slavery the employer sees you as a money making machine not as a human being (or where I live they do anyway)

the only way to get by in this world is to work for yourself not others username_taken - July 2, 2017, 3:05 am

tf if you're not smart enough to bullshit your way through high school then you're not going to make it far in life... but then again I got my diploma and I'm still living at home so-do you mister-life is meaningless

Rolex Gold - July 3, 2017, 9:28 am

If I could go back in time I would've gotten a job in high school as soon as I could, saved up enough money so that when I graduated I could start a small business and work from home. I'm currently in my third year at college and while everyone says its "the best time of your life" it's really not unless your major is some bs. There are easier ways to make money than college if your creative and have good work ethic. But stay in high school, its literally free.

Jan Pawel II - July 4, 2017, 2:02 pm lost 15k in csgo betting and wants to quit highschool.

jesus fuck if anything you should be with the tard kids in school

Pandamn - July 4, 2017, 2:21 pm

Stay in school, it sounds like you need more education

wint - July 6, 2017, 12:20 am

I dropped out got my ged shit is cash

DreadPirateDrake - July 8, 2017, 7:01 pm

Drop out of High School and you'll be a slave to poverty for your entire life. Whether or not you like or enjoy the established system, you need at least a High School diploma to move within this society. Do anything literally or try to do anything without it and you will always be viewed as a sub-par High School dropout neanderthal that isn't worth anybody's time. Whether or not it's true, it's the view that matters.

R3VOLT - July 20, 2017, 5:26 pm

(Jun 25, 2017 10:21 AM)kpown Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This is the most incredibly stupid mindset I've ever heard in my life

Exactly what I was thinking. Education is the best bet at getting a good paying job.

250k - July 20, 2017, 7:24 pm

Honestly , just breeze by HS and get your cert , then just do what you love after HS , or just stay in school if you dont give a fuck about it and use the time learning on your own monsterkill - July 23, 2017, 2:54 am

How can people be this stupid? Why drop out. I mean are you absolutely stupid? Oh right you still dream to be a successful singer like eminem or 50 cent and stuff like that.

DO your homework boy. or you fail.

Bobthegod - July 23, 2017, 3:33 am

After reading some replies here, what makes you think he/she will flip burgers after dropping out? I had good grades at school (most of the time) but I dropped out at last year and my teachers told me there's no future for me lol now I earn x15 of what most teachers earn , and oh yeah my earnings are online so you never know when it dies but I have invested a lot in real life so I'm not going broke anything soon and I won't definitely regret dropping out

Greenf1re - July 25, 2017, 3:29 pm

Look, I've been considering dropping out myself, but I always end up back in school. While it is not necessary for success in life, staying will help you and boost your chances of getting a job. I would recommend you stay in school vercenta - July 25, 2017, 3:31 pm

Eh don't need highschool, if you are smart you'll figure out how to get more bananas then the other monkeys.

Mr.Peanut - July 25, 2017, 3:39 pm

(Jul 8, 2017 07:01 PM)DreadPirateDrake Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Drop out of High School and you'll be a slave to poverty for your entire life. Whether or not you like or enjoy the established system, you need at least a High School diploma to move within this society. Do anything literally or try to do anything without it and you will always be viewed as a sub-par High School dropout neanderthal that isn't worth anybody's time. Whether or not it's true, it's the view that matters.

You're brainwashed and/or oblivious to life and its infinite real world factors. Take 30 seconds to scroll to the first page and read some of the replies I posted. I did literally the opposite of your beliefs, and the outcome is probably opposite of how you're doing in life (in a positively/financially secure way) if that makes sense.

You did say 1 thing that's true.. It is the view that matters. If you have a vision, and are determine, you can make things happen. It's all about scaling up, and laying out the foundation of whatever you're doing. Trees have roots, lawyers go to college and get licensed, small business owners acquire the necessary capital to fund the start up costs of their business with hopes of it growing. With the internet you can start a business for a few hundred dollars. If we're talking about legal registration and everything done right, we're talking about a few thousand realistically (website, LLC, EIN filing, logo, hosting, etc). People make more than $20,000 working minimum wage, if you're still young you can live with your parents for a short time, save money any way you can working, and fund your goals.

Twinblades - May 18, 2018, 7:35 pm

Talk with your high school counselor. They're there to help. They will know what the best option is :)