The method does have some requirements which is listed in the thread and it isn't instant it takes some time I need money right now.

Also if anyone wants proof feel free to pm me.

As long as the name isn't being used and meets the youtube guidelines you can do this unlimited times.

@vincent - August 1, 2017, 3:54 am

Seems interesting but I would only use it for my personal name, so it isn't really worth $80 to me..Goodluck selling

Chances are a name like that would be worth $80 alone.

Could be, but I wouldn't sell it then, but maybe try to grow it. But since I will only get my own name instead of getting names to resell I won't really make a profit which doesn't really feel like its worth $80 to me. The price would be good a price for people interested in making names for resell but atm not for me :)

Question, Is this just https://www.youtube.com/account_advanced#

Have the same G+ Name as the URL you want because most "OG" /c/ isn't claimed?

Or will your method let me claim usernames that are already claimed?

As a example:

<https://www.youtube.com/Pikachu> = Claimed

<https://www.youtube.com/c/Pikachu> = Not claimed

If a name isn't claimed and meets the YouTube requirements and gets this 404 error you can get it with this method.

possible to get,youtube.com/xyz instead of youtube.com/c/xyz

Is this trademark claiming? If so, this isn't a new method. Me and my friends have been doing it since 2009 and have gotten many channels that way. If it isn't, props.

No it isn't trademark claiming if you read the thread it clearly states it's a exploit.
