Just use DnSpy and have a look, source is organized enough to follow easily, you'll have no problems

I haven't tested it but I'm using a public runpe so i dont think you can't expect much from a free crypter ?

Regards
Paskowsky

NovaHowl - July 1, 2017, 4:34 am

Thanks a lot OP! Really HQ.

I'm actually surprised at this. I've tested runtime bypasses on MULTIPLE popular antiviruses such as MalwareBytes, AVG, Avast and more (with the network off in my VM to not distribute of course) and it bypassed. No warning, no nothing. Huge vouch for OP.

Also guys, please don't leech. I've seen multiple downloads without any more thanks or comments on this thread. Please thank OP for releasing a cypter that's free. The least you could do would be to leave a thanks.

Hi, thank you obviously for your work and the tip about DnSpy, I never coded in C# or with windows, only C/Cpp for linux but you gave me an overview of what is happening in a crypter, nice trick with bitmap, hard to understand what these really do but nice introduction.

Kristtik - July 1, 2017, 1:37 pm

It's a pretty basic crypter, like 2 hours of work in total. I'm going to release the source to github after it becomes unfud so everyone can improve it ?

where file stub in source?

alaintenaho - July 3, 2017, 4:40 pm
very curious to know if stupid guy uploaded on VirusTotal . No need to tire yourself There's a lot of fucking people who never have any idea of coding programming and they can't appreciate a free release without upload it on VT . Paid crypter are fuded until one day or 2 days max ... free crypter until 6h max???

The best solution for ever , is to release code source that people will refud if they can . Dont allow leechers fuck free crypter release

GoodF - July 3, 2017, 10:44 pm
