

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Kickstarter funding?

Ranta - June 30, 2017, 8:21 am

Can someone explain how does kickstarter pay you when you reach your goal. Lets say you set a goal of 20,000$, you reach 25,000$. How do you get payed? Do the funds withdraw to you bank account or how does it work. Thanks!

M?xim - June 30, 2017, 8:23 am

This sounds like something that would be explained on their site.

Ranta - June 30, 2017, 8:26 am

Yes but I'm lazy to dig for it ?

Eagerkid - June 30, 2017, 8:28 am

They take some fees

They used to be parntered with amazon but I guess they are with stripe now

Code You'll set up your account directly through Kickstarter, on the Account tab of project build. We're partnered with Stripe for this process, and it should only take a few minutes to complete!

JoshAllen - June 30, 2017, 10:09 am

(Jun 30, 2017 08:28 AM)Eagerkid Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) They take some fees

They used to be parntered with amazon but I guess they are with stripe now

Code You'll set up your account directly through Kickstarter, on the Account tab of project build. We're partnered with Stripe for this process, and it should only take a few minutes to complete!

Stripe is trash. I recieved a $10 payment on it, and withdraw and never got it.
They randomly asked me for a bunch of ID and stuff.

M?xim - June 30, 2017, 10:53 am

(Jun 30, 2017 10:09 AM)Ty TM Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Stripe is trash. I recieved a $10 payment on it, and withdraw and never got it.

They randomly asked me for a bunch of ID and stuff.
Stripe can suck my donkey.

I had one guy who apparently attempted to use a stolen card to purchase a product of mine and they closed me.

CaymanVeritas - March 11, 2019, 7:13 am

Stripe is trash, and KS now asks for a plethora of personal information when withdrawing