What is VPN Engine?

VPN Engine is a PHP script that helps you to manage your service clients, payments and vpn servers all together.

How it works:

- 1 - You rent servers from different locations, worldwide.
- 2 - Install OpenVPN on them and import each server details over VPN Engine administration panel.
- 3 - Customer purchases your service, and the system is automatically creating their vpn accounts on the servers and e-mails them with information.

Simple as that. You have nothing to do except taking care of customer support.

Features List:User system (login, register, password reset, e-mail confirmation)

Ticket system

Port forwarding

Membership system

Paypal / Coinpayments (BTC / LTC / ETH and other crypto currencies) IPN's

Multi-language system

Theme system (you can build & integrate your own themes)

E-mail templates

Fully working vpn automation (creating, deleting vpn accounts) and much more..

How much do servers cost to setup and shit?

KrueI - July 7, 2017, 9:27 am

(Jul 7, 2017 09:24 AM)Copywriter Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How much do servers cost to setup and shit? It ranges from $3-$15 depending on where you buy. From DigitalOcean it'll cost $5 per location/IP so if you want 7 locations it is $35 every month.

I think you need a good quality header on that thread design. The one you currently have isn't any good.

GLWSYeah it got really blurry when I tried to make it bigger even though I thought it was a vector. I probably turned it into pixels when I moved it into photoshop.

Anyways, I'm getting a new thread design and signature so they will have much higher quality then the current temporary ones I have. Hopefully everyone will like the new ones much better than these.

Kruel - July 9, 2017, 2:05 pm

We are working on changing the payment system to become a monthly subscription. This way the product would be cheaper to you guys but you would be required to pay monthly to keep your VPN service running. Would people be interested in that or would you prefer the more expensive one time payment thats currently available?

Juicy - July 10, 2017, 9:38 am

I've known Kruel for around a year now,we've been into business together and he has always helped me out a ton.

Before this he ran a VPN which I personally used and it worked exceptionally, so he knows what he is doing.

I'm sure this service is more than worth it!

Nutsy - July 10, 2017, 9:57 pm

I like the sound of that name but the look of the name doesn't seem really fitting for some reason. Could be because I've gotten so used to VPENGINE. I'll look into the name and see if it would be better than VPENGINE.

Thank you so much for the suggestion!

Does this support dedicated IP addresses?

Kruel - July 11, 2017, 10:00 pm

(Jul 11, 2017 09:59 PM)CryptoBanker Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Does this support dedicated IP addresses?

Not completely sure what you mean by that. You can have a server that has a dedicated IP address and when you use the VPN going through that server you will have that IP.

If I didn't answer your question could you please reword it, sorry.

Does it support allocating dedicated IP addresses to clients?

(Jul 11, 2017 11:06 PM)CryptoBanker Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Does it support allocating dedicated IP addresses to clients?

Currently not really. What you can do is use our system like how it is now and if a user wants a dedicated IP address you go to the server you have with no other users on it and then you install openvpn and add the user to that server and don't add any other users to that server.

ZurgTage - July 12, 2017, 9:46 pm

What is the best place to find cheap servers? Digital ocean looks like they have a transfer limit. (Possible problems?)

StopBackDooring - July 13, 2017, 7:14 am

Is their a client for the vpn? I think 150$ Minimum for a php script is pretty over priced, You could buy companies already setup with that price.

No sorry. I made a mistake in selling the client earlier. We have been reaching out to developers so you can expect a custom client in the near future.

As for the price I feel like it is reasonable. Many people say it's overpriced but people also say that it is underpriced so I think I'll keep the price as is for now.

Sorry we will not be doing that for now. VPENgine doesn't sound like VPN with my accent so rebranding the entire product would take a bit of time and I can't justify that time.

Considering whoopza sold this, are you still going to be pushing out updates? I have not been in the loop for a while on this product so maybe the last update was coded by you. 1.4 I believe?

Do you also provide support for setting these up for owners?

If this supported Multi-hop, and focused more on improving the security/privacy side of the actual VPN, I'd be more interested in buying. Right now, I'd say it's marginally better than pritunl (a free option), because you do have the support ticketing and order management included.

The service you stated isn't free for more than one server, also I will look into support Multi-hop.

Most people prefer to purchase from Digital Ocean as it is cheap and they have 7 locations. For $35 you are able to get 7 servers each in a different location.
