Where do you get the shirts?

Do you use a site such as Customshirts / spreadshirt ect..

mehtevass - July 5, 2017, 11:58 am

Gonna checkout your site,

lets hope its some geek stuff and no anonymous masks :P

The shirts are supplied and designed through a source we have combined with Shopify. I'd prefer to keep them confidential unless necessary.

You should change the IP For the shirt

There's No Place Like 192.168.0.1
Change the IP to 127.0.0.1

Prawnster - July 5, 2017, 12:00 pm

Well.... that's enough HF for today

Fortunate - July 5, 2017, 12:00 pm

Eh I like the idea but I'm not sure if anyone wants to wear a shirt related to anonymous :/

Shouldn't the shirt "There's no place like 192.168.0.1" be 127.0.0.1 since it's more known?

Change the IP to 127.0.0.1I was thinking about this. I'm not a fan of that design much, which is why I'm receiving criticism as of now:). Thanks for your input!

There's always people who dislike ideas no matter the idea :).

The cringe is real, probably made with printfuls drag and drop generator ?

That's alright. It's not for everyone but this is why it's in the criticism stage. I'd prefer to hear everyone's thoughts before actually accepting sales. I do plan to remove some and add a lot.

Just try to make the shirts what a "real hacker" would wear, not a shirt a 14 year old skid would wear and then maybe I would consider buying it.

Make unique designs, to be honest I do not really find the current ones so far, just throwing my opinion out there.

I have a lot of designs in the making and plan to make a little more advanced creations. I take all the negativity everyone provides as encouragement to better the store.

A site created for advocates of anonymity to buy products, but doesn't accept anonymous forms of payment is a tad ironic, right? ?

That's exactly how criticism works and you'll get it no matter what. Glad that you're not taking it too seriously and you're willing to improve.

The reasoning is because of the supplier. That's beyond my control unless I create a custom site or accept custom payments personally.

Alright, But what is the prices?

I mean why should I buy a tshirt from you for $20? when I can get a custom printed for less? (As an example)

This product has been changed and the old product has been removed. Thank you for your ideas.

I think if you can keep the price to <$15, more people would be inclined to buy it.

Good luck with the sales! ?

I will definitely keep this in mind!

wit - July 5, 2017, 1:06 pm

Definitely need to lower the prices. I can replicate almost all of these shirts for much less than the price they're going for.

D?ceived - July 5, 2017, 1:07 pm

Hoodies and maybe even gloves might be a good addition to this!

Yea, I figured that's what you meant. I will keep these ideas in mind, my dude! I'm definitely going to slim down the main stream media style of blackhat and go for a more elusive style.

That's good to hear:). I'm definitely motivated to keep moving forward with this approach. I plan to create designs to meet he public's wishes and not just have a strict set of clothing that they are forced to choose from. I like to take people's opinions and put them on paper.

SanctualProductions - July 5, 2017, 2:01 pm
