Thread: autolock inactive threads

Gary - July 6, 2017, 5:45 pm

Could this be a feature that can be added?

Threads get autolocked after being inactive for 6+ months?

It would be a great feature to add to prevent gravedigging.

Riyu - July 6, 2017, 5:46 pm

Gravedigging isn't disallowed though so why would you need to lock old threads.

According to dis man

it's not bannable if it's on-topic and relevant.

Yes, if it's off topic or unrelated.

If you have a quality answer then it is fine. It's a forum.

Meow - July 6, 2017, 5:48 pm

I really like this suggestion, hopefully it gets implemented.

Gary - July 6, 2017, 5:49 pm

its also annoying seeing people finding really old threads that are like 7 years old and bumping them on purpose cause when that happens staff close the thread. so why not make it easier and close threads that have been inactive for 6months or 1 year?

yeah but how many times is it a quality answer? rarely, and the person they're responding to isnt even active.

yeah but how many times is it a quality answer? rarely, and the person they're responding to isnt even active. Then report them as low quality and move on.

If things changed then Omni would have already done it.

Gravedigging is not something that gets worse as time goes on.

Report and move on.

Hasn't been suggested this year.

Gravedigging is annoying to everyone.

asking for a download link when the thread creator is closed seeing it multiple times is annoying plus it prevents people from spamming stupid shit like it happens in the minecraft section this could be implemented to some sections not all of them.

M?xim - July 6, 2017, 7:42 pm

I think that it's a nice idea considering the +6 months that you mentioned.

VmX5 - July 6, 2017, 8:12 pm

I don't quite agree with this, I do agree with some of the other people who have posted. If the post is relevant and HQ it should be fine.

Terry A. Davis - July 6, 2017, 9:09 pm

It shouldn't be considered grave digging if it contributes to the discussion.

So a thread shouldn't necessarily be locked as people might still be able to contribute.

Jimmie - July 6, 2017, 9:14 pm

Why do people even care about old threads? Loads of this stuff is useful regardless of the date it was posted.

Very good idea garebear I hope this gets the implementation

Eagle 95 - July 6, 2017, 11:14 pm

Suggested and denied many times before.
