Thread: OP5 or iPhone 7 PLUS? - help me decide

Purest. - July 8, 2017, 2:34 am

So I am finally going to grab myself a phone and I am having trouble deciding, I could spend $600 on the OnePlus 5 OR get myself a Refurbished iPhone 7 PLUS for $580 OR the iPhone 7 only for $460

I'm having a hard time deciding and I definitely want to be able to save some dollahs, my budget is $600.

Edit: One of the main reasons pushing me to get a phone is for pentesting, which is more better on the OP5 but it is possible on the 7 if you jailbreak it as well.

MrNotNice - July 8, 2017, 2:36 am

I would definitely go with the OnePlus 5 because of 8GB of ram and great processor. Looks nice as well.

True, but they surely have bumped up their price a bit also the camera on the 7 is tons better.

SIM-2223238 - July 8, 2017, 2:49 am

The OnePlus 5 is negative reviews due some small bugs but I'd personally go for the OP5.

theDuke - July 8, 2017, 2:52 am iPhone>Android. Go for the 7 plus for sure.

Meh I'd still pick Android over iPhone. I currently own iPhone 6 because I moved from Android few months ago and I highly regret my decision. You can customize everything you want and it's easier to install cracked apps. I wish my Galaxy S6 would still work because I'd definitely still use it instead of my iPhone. However I noticed that iPhone is much faster because of the optimized OS.

I dunno, did you jailbreak yours? I did on ipad way back but is the process easier now?

I would love to have a terminal with pentesting tools, that's why. But then the 32gb on the 7 ain't that good.

Tree of Life - July 8, 2017, 3:06 am

I didn't think you could jailbreak the iPhone 7.

Well I've learnt something new lol

Mathematician. - July 8, 2017, 3:09 am iPhone 7 100% man. I love the iphone

Well I've checked some videos on how to Jailbreak iOS 10.2 and it's getting harder with each update. I mean the jailbreak process is easy but it's hard to keep the jailbreak running. The video says you have to restart your iPhone each 7 days and repeat the jailbreak process to keep it jailbroken otherwise it won't work.. I'm not planning on jailbreaking my iPhone anyways because it'd lose my warranty. I'm going to jailbreak it when I'll finish paying the monthly fee for my iPhone and the warranty is over. Well I've seen some penetrating tools on Nexus devices tho.

MrNotNice - July 8, 2017, 3:19 am

And as for the iPhone 7 jailbreaking you have to pray to get it with iOS 10.1 installed otherwise you won't be able to jailbreak it.

There is no "superior", retard. Its preference

OP get an OnePlus if you like the Android system and its customisation capabilities out of the box
Get an iPhone if you like iOS and the fact it's very straightforward

Tree of Life - July 8, 2017, 3:25 am

I have an iPhone 7 and I love it. It's fast and does exactly what I need it to do. The camera quality is very very nice compared to my previous phone which was the iPhone 4s.

Heulen - July 8, 2017, 3:26 am get an Op3T and save yourself some money, all the Op5 has over the 3t is a better camera imo.

Does a refurbished phone come with warranty? and I see no warranty claims for the OP5 till now

This

And as for your pentesting thingy, go with Android, chances are you'll have a much easier time with getting it to work on there due to all the options available to the OS itself

I'm an Android user but Apple does sure look sexy and it has a nice look and feel to it, again, like Cammy said:

Preference

Granny Bacon - July 8, 2017, 3:28 am

I am an iOS user, just so you know.

But I will still recommend OP5 over i7+ because OP5 is superiour.

It's much better.

But it also depends on what kind of user you are.

Do you like simplicity and just straightforward? Go for i7.

Do you like to mess with the system and OC and that stuff? Go for OP5.

(Although I think jailbreak in iOS is so much better than rooting on android).

Well probably depends on where you buy the phone. I bought the phone with monthly subscription and I have to pay the warranty fee in it as well. Never bought phone for a full price yet :hehe.

Little bit off topic tho, is there a setting I can set to get alerted when someone quotes me?

You can create a bot for that using the HF API, but it's not public to all users.

That sounds like a pain in the ass, I heard there was a way with the web interface itself though.

Discoli - July 8, 2017, 3:55 am

OP5 everyday.

Let's just start it off with it's android, you don't need to wait forever for jailbreaks.

Second of all, it's so much more powerful than the iPhone 7, imo, defiantly worth it.

Yep going to order it tommorow.

Goals - July 8, 2017, 4:55 am

If you want the iPhone. Wait for the 8. Don't get the 7. The 7 is basically like the 6s but without the headphone jack

Mac - July 8, 2017, 5:02 am

I personally would use iPhone. I had the original OPS, then I bought a iPhone 6S+. Just using it day-to-day is so smooth and enjoyable. Amazing battery life too.

Good choice ?

Have fun living a life of phone freedom and customisation and also a phone which will last you and stay high end for a long while.

ForceJew - July 8, 2017, 5:49 am

One plus all the way I use one my self and it's great.

yotoprules - July 8, 2017, 6:10 am

OP5, android will 100% be better for pentesting, as for iOS the iPhone will have to be on outdated firmware or you will be screwed in terms of jailbreaking.

John F. Kennedy - July 8, 2017, 8:32 am Sure the OP5 has 8 gigs of ram and whatnot, but Apple optimizes their software with hardware amazingly. It's personal preference as to what OS you prefer. I use my iPhone 7, and I wish I gotten the 7 Plus. So if you pick iPhone 7, go with the 7 Plus. iPhones age really well, and Apple will continue to support it for years.

Personally, I'm just not an android fan, but there's nothing wrong with it.

MindFreak™ - July 8, 2017, 8:47 am

iPhone is the best everrr

casabe - July 8, 2017, 8:53 am

I would personally go for the iPhone 7 plus but it's just up to your taste and about what you need. If you need powerful stuff and a more open-like thing, the OP5 is the one.

But as you said up there, iPhone 7 has one of the best cameras (specially the 7 plus) so if you need the camera, the security that iOS gives and a price that never goes down ? iPhone is your one.

Hope it helps ??

I second this. Very true.

psmp2 - July 8, 2017, 12:37 pm

id only say 7 or 7 plus because i swear by apple after numerous bad experiences with Android OS... i love the open operating system but they seem to go to shieet after a short period of time.

Mobsteroids - July 8, 2017, 12:48 pm iPhone, I don't see how people stand Androids. They lose support quicker than iPhones do which is quiet sad.

Rock™ - July 8, 2017, 12:51 pm

I have an iPhone 7 and it works fine. Had it since release. It gets a bit hot sometimes, but it's fine. Works for my everyday task and the battery is great. Has been with me since release and hasn't gotten slow.

In my perspective I can't see how people stand iPhones. But that's just my opinion. Android let's you do a lot more than iOS does with/without a jailbreak.

I like both but for now I have decided upon the OP5, its final. ?

Clrify - July 10, 2017, 6:51 am you literally do not need 8gb of ram. I hate how android manufactures always give tons of unnecessary features to create a selling point.

do you really need to do half the shit you can do with an android?

Mohammedks - July 10, 2017, 10:57 am

I'd take the iPhone 7 plus.

Yes I do. For example iOS doesn't even come with a damn file manager. It's not easy to download and manage files like you can on android. In iOS in order to sideload apps you need an expensive developer account, which I can't afford, and if you do it for free you have to re-sign the app every week. Which obviously non-tech savvy people cannot do.

SIM-2090815 - July 10, 2017, 1:40 pm

iPhone 7 is currently only Jailbreakable on 10.1.1 and its not very stable. Still though I have an iPhone 6 and am looking to get the 8 when it releases. I just like the ease of use of iOS but the fact that I can add and tweak things with my jailbreak makes it even better. Its much harder to get tweaks and stuff for android devices because everything is everywhere where as on iOS everything in cydia.

SIM-2562043 - July 10, 2017, 2:25 pm

Would go for the one plus if I were you. I recently got an S8+ and wow its amazing. Android > iOS.

Theoretic - July 10, 2017, 3:19 pm

In all honesty the restrictions of iOS 10.2 are getting outrageous, there is no versatility. I'd have to say anything but iPhones, the whole removal of the headphone jack and iOS updates got me personally switched over to the Samsung s8+.

Prince™ - July 14, 2017, 8:18 pm

Garb iphone 7 with no headphone jack. Go for OP 5. Better value for money imho.

Xenolith - July 15, 2017, 3:23 am

I can't vote, but I would go for OP5. OnePlus makes solid products, got both a 1 & 3T myself, really happy with both. :)

funtela - July 15, 2017, 4:28 am

Just wait until the new iPhone comes out this year. Then you can decide :)

Djlexus - July 15, 2017, 9:58 pm

but its tomato tomato when it comes to different devices... we have so many choices for a reason go with what you love not what seems best.

MaxVelocity - July 16, 2017, 10:49 am iphone 7 plus? Better wait for the iphone 8 and get it newman1 - July 17, 2017, 4:55 pm

I would go with not an iphone. Honestly they sell the brand name, the other phone should have much more power for the price.

iKinky - July 18, 2017, 4:02 am

I've had 3 different OP phones. I really liked each one of them.. but I always ended up back at iPhone months later.

Really comes down to user preference. I thoroughly enjoyed the OP3, but my iPhone 7 is just simple and what I need for a daily driver.

True Money - July 18, 2017, 4:20 am

I'd get the galaxy S8 or OP5 (if your looking for cheaper)

QuantumDialect - July 18, 2017, 5:49 pm

OP, get the OP5 when it comes out. It's probably the only android phone worth buying and it out performs apple's iphone every day of the week.
