Thread: [\[Necro Injection Client\] Minecraft 1.12](#)

Wdestroier - July 9, 2017, 7:01 pm

Hello HF, I'm wdes and I would like to show you my client.

It's a really old project (more than a year old) and a lot of you are good or old, experienced coders and I would like opinions, what can I make better etc

An earlier version got leaked in a not too popular forum because I sent it to three guys

Here is an old video. A lot of things have been fixed, added and changed:

youtube\(dot\)com\(slash\)watch?v=mu90oCeX9N

Current HUD: imgur\(dot\)com\(slash\)a\(slash\)8FYti

It injects to vanilla on the fly and has normal client modules, from killaura to anticactus, phase etc.

Good because Mojang has new terms and it can be useful

If wanted my discord is Wdestroier#2509

So yeah thanks for reading and leave your comment

You're asking for the opinion of "good or old experienced programmers," but from a programming standpoint, what type of feedback are you expecting from an old video and one screenshot of the ingame GUI.

It looks very normal design-wise.

I really despise command based clients, as far as the heads up display is it looks pretty nifty.

Plus what makes this any different than a normal versions client?

Do you use bytecode injection? (If so u got a pretty good ghost client)

It looks very good. Keep going OP

i thought the new thing mojang is doing only really applies to people who plan to release their client either free/open source or paid

Hud feedback "UGLY" and the injection idea, I have more records but they are at very low quality

It does have a Click GUI, Tab GUI, Console and Chat commands (with Anti Logger), the showcase was old

It is injectable without any modifications to the launcher, but I don't call it a ghost client because I can't eject/uninject/destroy/destruct it, but I have a few ideas.
