

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Fleeker Webdesign

Mister Slyther - July 10, 2017, 4:38 am

For the individual images of the pages designed: <https://imgur.com/a/7uOQ7>

Lukas - July 10, 2017, 6:09 am

Good website in general, these are the things I'd change however:

Font of the header (not that it looks bad per say, I just think it looks a little wacky along with all of the other very subtle text on the site)

<http://prntscr.com/ftvfns> - either capitalize all of it or just capitalize the first letters in the heading, and capitalize the abbreviations for the sizing to keep the flow going, rather than it alternating)

Other than that, I think the site looks amazing. It's very clean, minimal, and looks like it would be easy to navigate if it were a legitimate site. Good work!

Mister Slyther - July 10, 2017, 6:35 am

(Jul 10, 2017 06:09 AM)Luka? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Good website in general, these are the things I'd change however:

Font of the header (not that it looks bad per say, I just think it looks a little wacky along with all of the other very subtle text on the site)

<http://prntscr.com/ftvfns> - either capitalize all of it or just capitalize the first letters in the heading, and capitalize the abbreviations for the sizing to keep the flow going, rather than it alternating)

Other than that, I think the site looks amazing. It's very clean, minimal, and looks like it would be easy to navigate if it were a legitimate site. Good work!

Thanks for your feedback ?

Yeah i have to agree with capitalization that you're talking about.

AvessoVision - July 10, 2017, 6:44 am

Great and simple web design. Although I am not a big fan of black and white. It only works in a few cases with proper spacing between elements.

This reminds of of the old H&M website, which was alright, but it needs to step up to current trends. Footer looks great from what I can tell but the logo font type is not a good choice for the squared edges concept.

The area with sizes and prices does not appeal to me. What if there are a lot more sizes? Enlisting all of them would fill that spot easily. Think of fresh ways of enlisting everything. The menu button is pushed inwards.

Nonetheless it looks clean I must say. Nothing too much of a trouble nor too hard to change.

relapser - July 11, 2017, 4:15 am

Looks awesome! Could probably lower the thickness of the header/logo to make it fit more with the rest of the design imo. Love it though