I completed my MTA Network Fundamentals exam today, passed by two marks. Has anyone else done this exam?

I've never heard of it before truthfully.

Thats a link to it. Its part of the training that I have to do for my internship. I didn't know how legit it was (like if it is a real certification) but upon passing I got an email from Microsoft congratulating me and giving me a "badge" with a unique pass ID.

Ayyyyy. I got it 2 years ago. When I took it it was SUPER easy....Maybe it was just me. I was pretty involved in my networking class so no doubt that helped me a lot. But I studied for like 1 hour ish max. How was it for you? Did you think you were gonna pass it while you were taking it? Was it hard? Not sure if it's been updated since 2 years ago but yeah.

Gratz. :) MTA Net fundamentals squad boi. You got any certs?

Can't say I have any familiarity. What all does it cover?

Ayyyyy. We had 4 days to learn the entire syllabus. I had a basic understanding of networking going into it so that really helped. My teachers said to the class that he was only expecting half of us to pass (and only 2 out of 12 did) so that made me doubt myself a bit.

Nah MTA only atm, hopefully getting my ACCENT done towards the end of the year.
