Thread: I want to create a specific hacking tool

What I want to do is block my brother's iPad from accessing Clash Royale. I know there are probably many tools to do this, probably even in the form of Android apps. However, I want to do this myself.

I imagine you wish to know why I want to do this. My brother is a pro at the game. I'm not. He likes to brag about this. I want to stop him from playing, so I have time to level up. (yeah, I know this is a terrible reason, but it makes me sad, so I must correct it)

I'm running Kali Linux in VM. I currently use a wifikill python script and aireplay-ng. (I feel like a seriously pro skiddie.) Anyway, I can do all this just fine, but I don't know when he's playing. I have to block his connection 24/7 to make sure he doesn't get to Clash Royale. I think that's far too cruel. He does stuff like YouTube, and I don't care about blocking that.

I'm thinking that I should write a python script with Scapy that does the following: occasionally check where connections from the MAC address of my brother's iPad are going if they are going to Clash Royale servers, then I can use ARP poisoning that's used in wifikill.

Would this work? If it does, how would I check the destination of packets from the iPad? This is the part I don't know how to do.

Can anyone help with this?

You're fucking disgusting, please don't assist this fucking sore loser. His brother is just happy.

Actually I have a solution. Surprisingly enough, it doesn't involve hacking (perfect for a skid like yourself). What you want to do is play the game and get better. There is literally no cool-down to how much you can play the game. Learn strategies, get better, don't be an envy filled twat.

If Find out what port the application takes place on and block that port, I did a quick google search and their are two, and if you want him to still access http, then only block 9339, and you can do this on your modem/wifi router, no hacking needed.

Don't pay attention to those LQ posts above me.

Wouldn't this block his connection as well? The posts asks for a way to keep specifically his brother from playing, not everyone on the network. Also, your name says it all, you have zero cool :|

Wouldn't the game just use a different port if you blocked it, if it's not p2p, and due to UPnP?

I wouldn't know. Never did any further research other than what port it "plays" on.
