Thread looks really well done, the title is a bit out of place it seems, and just put on there, but other than that, great original design from what i've seen

Nice that you're trying to give back to the community but you need to drastically improve your designs before you can do shit like this. I recommend you look back at some of the basics of graphic design. (YouTube is a good place to learn)

They're too basic, this is something a lot of people can replicate with just a small bit of Photoshop learning. Keep on working on it tho.

I'd leave some space under the pricing section to allow people to put the features of each price point in.
