Thread: Stupid Questions About WATER PRESSURE \(semi-rant\)

RealSwaqqr - July 30, 2017, 12:01 am

Okay so I have these bitch ass neighbors downstairs in the basement right?

During the day time if one of us wants to shower it's gonna be impossible if the people downstairs are home. We don't know what they're doing with the water constantly that makes it drop it's pressure instantly.

When I mean constantly i really mean it, the water pressure in this house is lousy it drops to absolutely nothing sometimes. The people downstairs are doing some shit and i'm wondering what the fuck they're doing considering i just tried to shower and ITS 2 AM IN THE MORNING and it dropped.

I hopped in and what do you know it fucking drops, and I hear something like a door close downstairs in their bathroom. And after that the shower water pressure drops periodically it seems.

What could this be? And who else thinks they're doing this shit on purpose.

The only time the water pressure should drop instantly normally is when a toilet is flushed in the house. So are they flushing the toilet constantly? LMAO they're definitely doing some shady shit with the water.

I know this is a weird ass rant but it's fucking annoying that even at 2 AM I can't even shower.
