

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Hidden characters

Aqzxc - August 5, 2017, 2:07 pm

I know many users here are using hidden characters to make their name look like something they desire.

What website do you use for these characters? I'm looking for a letter that looks like a lowercase 'r', but not the actual 'R' because the name I desire is taken.

Thanks.

Yandere - August 5, 2017, 2:09 pm

I don't think we're allowed to use name with invisible characters?

Aqzxc - August 5, 2017, 2:10 pm

(Aug 5, 2017 02:09 PM)Yandere Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't think we're allowed to use name with invisible characters?

It's not against the rules as far as I'm concerned.

I know multiple users that do this because the past name is taken.

SIM-3327349 - August 5, 2017, 2:10 pm

Try charmap in Windows, it should help you with finding chars

Sheeple - August 5, 2017, 2:11 pm

(Aug 5, 2017 02:09 PM)Yandere Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't think we're allowed to use name with invisible characters?

You need to have at least 4 visible characters in your name.

SIM-3327349 - August 5, 2017, 2:12 pm

Or you can use this site: <https://coolsymbol.com/cool-fancy-text-generator.html>

webdev77 - August 5, 2017, 2:12 pm

(Aug 5, 2017 02:09 PM)Yandere Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't think we're allowed to use name with invisible characters?

As long as the characters don't break the sites layout and aren't completely obnoxious, it's fine.

Character Map on Windows is the easiest way to find look alike characters.

Aqzxc - August 5, 2017, 2:14 pm

Thanks to Grow I got this done.

Rip Wisconsin.