Thread: Game of Thrones \(S7\) Episode 5 Script Leaked - Hacker Demands Millions in Ransom

tcsh - August 8, 2017, 8:05 am

The hacking group that recently hacked HBO has just dropped its third trove of documents, including a month emails of one of the company's executives, and a detailed script of the upcoming fifth episode of "Game of Thrones" Season 7, set to be aired on August 13.

The latest release is the second leak from the hackers who claimed to have obtained around 1.5 terabytes of information from HBO, following the release of upcoming episodes of "Ballers" and "Room 104," and a script of the fourth episode of "Game of Thrones."

With the release of another half-gigabyte sample of its stolen HBO data, the hacking group has finally demanded a ransom worth millions of dollars from the entertainment giant in order to prevent further leaks.

When I click on threads like this, I kinda want to know your opinion on this opposed to simply reading various snippets from the article you linked.

If you want a discussion going, ask, I'm not a mind reader and maybe not too many people are that interested in what I have to say on the matter and would much rather get the news scoop. ?

Understandable, nothing against you, I'm not often in this section so I don't know how it typically operates. But I guess you've got a point? ?

Edit: Hey man, I'm just saying, it'd be nice to see the poster's opinion, hope I didn't strike a nerve.

No one's getting ransom money for a fucking show script. (but maybe for this episode cause it's juicy) They need to be better hackers and stop pulling this weak shit.

Depends, it can really start to damage HBO's legitimate viewings- and cost them money in the long run if this continues to happen.

I'd prefer they leak a show I don't actively watch, though.

Imfao i dont get it if you leak the script people will still watch the show, so you are just wasting time

I watched the last leaked episode, and then only watched the battle scene at the end when it came out for real.

I'd imagine there are plenty of people who watched it online and then didn't bother watching when it came out in their area.

Much like last season, where I'd watch a crappy stream instead of waiting for the UK TV release, when I woke up- so that it couldn't be spoiled and I could join in discussions with friends.

You and me both lol ?

Is this really anything serious?

Who wants to read a script for GoT? If that was the case the books would be more popular than the episodes, which they're not.

Even if it was leaked, people would still watch it on TV.

(Plus you can't see all the titties on a script like you can on TV)

maxbrandy - August 8, 2017, 3:17 pm

I need to start watching this from season 1 I got a long way to go

I never understood these ransoms for stolen digital content.

"Hey HBO, I just hacked your digital content and I'm asking for ransom money, please trust that after I get paid I wont reproduce and leak the content anyways..."

Enchantress - August 9, 2017, 6:40 pm

Well that totally sucks for HBO, however I'm a hella stoked to see episode 5 before Sunday. I'm very impatient when it comes to game of thrones. Mad props to those haxors!

I really hope this happens with the new season 8 haha

Fallenour - March 11, 2019, 2:03 pm

Its most likely a trap. If they conveniently only got 1 script, that translates to very likely each person was given a different script, or multiple scripts, and it was in an effort to identify who has been the leak, or who is the security risk. This was most likely done to ensure the ending of the Finale episode, which possesses the most value to the company, was not leaked.
