

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Pennystocks \(TimSykes\) + looking for mentor

zhunne - August 11, 2017, 7:36 am

Hey everyone !

Ive been learning about pennystocks for about a year now.. (havent made any trades so far)
Recently i discovered this forum and found out that here are quite a lot skilled people in many categorys.

Anyone here who is trading pennystocks daily? Have expreience?

Maybe even singned up with timalerts or something similar?

So any feedback would be nice !

(Pay attention, i cannot PM)

Thank you!

EDIT:

Didnt wanna do a new topic for this.

But im also looking for mentor who is trading pennystocks and using Timothy Sykes methods or something similar.

Would be nice to follow someones trades and learn as we move on.

Thank You for your time !

SIM-2562043 - August 11, 2017, 8:22 am

I don't really have much knowledge on pennystocks, but I highly recommend looking into crypto currencies. The growth of some of them are ridiculous.

zhunne - August 11, 2017, 8:39 am

Well yes.. But to be honest i havent looked into any of thous and havent had any interest so far.
Although for me (i can be wrong) crypto looks alot similar to pennystocks..

G Money - August 11, 2017, 4:26 pm

If you're serious about penny stock trading, I recommend looking into Timothy Sykes.

zhunne - August 11, 2017, 10:56 pm

Well yea, been looking into him the whole time..
Got even some of his training videos..(lost now).

But yea, has anyone actually joined with TimAlerts as well?

I joined a few discord channels.. Since markets are closed im gonna observe the channels and stocks during next week and then probably gonna step into the game finally.

Bossk - August 12, 2017, 4:33 pm

(Aug 11, 2017 08:22 AM)Choda Wrote: CITE I don't really have much knowledge on pennystocks, but I highly recommend looking into crypto currencies. The growth of some of them are ridiculous. I agree with this.

Buy a few hundred worth of every new crypto that pops up and you might earn you're self incredible amounts of money in a few years.

zhunne - August 13, 2017, 10:42 am

Well i most likely will do it.

But my main focus at the moment is not long term investments. Yes i will probably go long on some crypto money, but not today.

forexbreaker - August 17, 2017, 12:48 pm

Dear zhunne...

I am working within the industry of Forex. From my previous experience as a trading assistant, what I have found is simple... It's far easier to take the client's money (fees, hidden fees etc) than to help him or she make money. My advice is: 1) Never lose money you can't afford to lose. It's so primitive yet so important. 2) The spread (difference between buy and sell) in things that are NOT in demand is huge. For example, if you trade on Forex EUR/USD pair the spread can be as little as 0.1 pip. However f you try to trade something that is not in demand USD/RUB the spread will be more than 30 pips. Most of this spread goes to broker and a fraction to liquidity provider... The game is very hard and it's meant to be against the little guy, because it's easier to TAKE than to CREATE. If it's allowed I might post an email of mine or invite you to a chat to give you some unbiased advice for free.

As for Timothy Sykes, I had many clients over time that lost money from this venture. Again, it's far easier for companies to take than to create.

zhunne - August 17, 2017, 12:57 pm

Point taken.

Like ive said, ive studied for a while now and managed to gain some knoweledge. Without taken any real action.

Using only practice account and worked out pretty good so far. (But unlimited funds and fear of not losing makes a huge difference).

Conclusion ive made about sykes is pretty much same - but there are pretty much students who are doing very good.

And im in few pennystocks trading chats where are quite alot useful information and members.

I would love to grab an contact.

Ivanka Trump - August 18, 2017, 6:07 pm

Do not purchase advice from Timothy Sykes. The best advice is always free, why would someone sell advice if they're already wealthy? I've never personally seen a wealthy man sell advice/tips.

zhunne - August 18, 2017, 11:21 pm

Well to be absolutelt honest... Havent purchased any so far. Sykes training videos i was able to download dor free.

Onely thing what i was intrested in was tims alerts, but now im in few discord channels and dont have any need for sykes overpriced community.

Poseidon - August 19, 2017, 10:24 am

Fuck Tim Sykes, he just wants your money.

forexbreaker - August 27, 2017, 4:23 pm

Feel free to add me on skype: live:dennischr_4 :)

(Aug 17, 2017 12:57 PM)zhunne Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Point taken.

Like ive said, ive studied for a while now and managed to gain some knoweledge. Without taken any real action.

Using only practice account and worked out pretty good so far. (But unlimited funds and fear of not losing makes a huge difference).

Conclusion ive made about sykes is pretty much same - but there are pretty much students who are doing very good.

And im in few pennystocks trading chats where are quite alot useful information and members.

I would love to grab an contact.

There was a nice way that Warren Buffet used to find undervalued stocks. But it's a bit complex... Penny stocks, can be suddenly go to 0 can go to 10$ per share let's say from 0.10$. But it's hard when you have the real money because spreads BUY/SELL price is so different that you always start negative, when you get some green digits you will be eager to close the position... Just human nature :P

omgitsjoe - September 9, 2017, 3:18 pm where do you recommend the best place to learn about pennystocks?

Premade - June 11, 2018, 6:16 pm

(Aug 17, 2017 12:48 PM)forexbreaker Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Dear zhunne...

I am working within the industry of Forex. From my previous experience as a trading assistant, what I have found is simple... It's far easier to take the client's money (fees, hidden fees etc) than to help him or she make money. My advice is: 1) Never lose money you can't afford to lose. It's so primitive yet so important. 2) The spread (difference between buy and sell) in things that are NOT in demand is huge. For example, if you trade on Forex EUR/USD pair the spread can be as little as 0.1 pip. However f you try to trade something that is not in demand USD/RUB the spread will be more than 30 pips. Most of this spread goes to broker and a fraction to liquidity provider... The game is very hard and it's meant to be against the little guy, because it's easier to TAKE than to CREATE. If it's allowed I might post an email of mine or invite you to a chat to give you some unbiased advice for free.

As for Timothy Sykes, I had many clients over time that lost money from this venture. Again, it's far easier for companies to take than to create.

Could you advise me too, im already into crypto and now i would like to get a honest guide of trading pennystocks withouth having to buy one for 10391029 dollar ;D

Artemis Fowl - June 12, 2018, 1:37 am

Penny stocks are pretty volatile, I try to stay away from them other than some swing trades here and there.

If you're looking to make some good profits off of them than that's your best bet. Find some stocks that has a track record of consistent support at a certain price and buy it when it dips around there. You're going to have to be tracking lots and lots of stocks at any given time to always have stocks that are at their support level. There's also always option trading penny stocks for the big profits, but at your level right now I'd stay away from option trading.