Gave up with cable management about a year ago. Ended up going through around 50 cable ties each month.

I just move everything so frequently it's become more hassle than it's worth.

I can relate to that, cable management is amazing until you need something moved, then it's a big mess.

This is a lifesaver though, doesn't require zipties:

I have one like these. Really hate it. It will become one big mess eventually, and if you want to replace one cable you'll fuck everything up.
