I would highly suggest not buying it from the user selling it at 0.075, you'll get your license terminated.

Pretty sure it's literally the same, OP is just allowed to sell licenses.

This, I have permission from the owner to sell licenses here at the price stated :)

(i.e. You won't get your APIs blocked)

That and the fact that there'll be a group here around which pairs to run/stop running ?

I would recommend [censored], they bill their VPS's by the hour, they're very stable, and price-wise perfect imho.

Plus they bill at the end of the month, so if you're not happy/want to be stingy, you can just throw the account away and make a few one, but that's a pretty shitty thing to do ?

It's not exhaustive. I'm still running the bot myself, however the general theme around the group I've purchased will be around money making, which this fits into a category of.

And no, I understand the questions, I would have asked the exact same questions if I was in your position, so no hate or anything ?

it comes with stratigys prebuild like step gain and BBand bouncing to amke small trades contantly but they add up, cause the bot never stops its always trading always making small gain's you know what a compounding intrest is? google it.

Code Perhaps the ability to automatically generate income based on market ups and downs?Thats literally what a trading bot is, and guess what, there are dozens of them that are open source and free, hell there are libraries that expose such functionality. My question is what sort of strategy or statistical indicators make it worth that much.

Then again i guess it was stupid of me to ask a reseller about such things.

And speaking of income it self, its not guaranteed and rarely breaks even when it comes to algorithmic trading.

The 1st link for myself showed me the bitcointalk link. And I don't see anything wrong with it. It should provide you every information you are looking for.

If you take the time to do some research, you could check that currently none open source solutions (at least present in Github) seems to be 100% working in regards of its features.

Every bot I have checked on my own seems to warn the user that the software may not work correctly due unidentified bugs or delays communicating with exchange platforms.

Afaik Gunbot is not having any problems with that, and apart of that - it is a paid software, what brings a new level of motivation to the project.

If I'm going to be completely honest, I don't know. I'm not the developer behind this project, I'm simply a seller. The price is reflected by the increase in BTC. When I purchased this program, BTC was hovering at around $1,500, meaning my license was only $150. Since then, BTC has skyrocketed, however as it generates income based on BTC, not USDT, the price in BTC remains constant.

I'll assist with the setup, and also recommend pairs and settings that I myself am running depending on the markets and coins.

There is always a possibility to lose money, given the nature of the game, so you would be 'shit out of luck', similar to if Bitcoin went to $0 one day. The idea is you diversify though, so even if 1 coin goes to shit, you'll still be making bank on the others.

Poloniex will attempt to limit you with nonce requests if you make too many calls on an API. This issue was addressed about 2 months ago. That being said, I don't trade on Poloniex anymore given rumours of illiquidity.

Bittrex doesn't limit you, and I would suggest trading on Bittrex if only for the high volume and limitless requests ?

There's a few strategies you use, for example here is the results from BB on OMG.

You'll see it trades as the price fluctuates. Of course, this is only on 1 coin, so my strategy is to diversify onto many coins. Some will trade, some won't. If you want to increase your risk/return, you can run less pairs or higher balances.

(Aug 16, 2017 03:50 PM)Tree Hugger Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Im sure this gets asked a lot but is there an average percentage people make a day?

It will depend on your relative risk and return. I'm averaging about 0.5-1% a day with fairly conservative settings, however when I was trading on Poloniex with riskier settings, I was looking at 3-5% a day (until the bears came).

EziNet - August 17, 2017, 2:44 am

I was on Poloniex initially, made about 0.4BTC running the suggested settings from 1BTC for a month. Then the bear market hit so I turned it off, found it wasn't profitable. After I've switched to Bittrex, and diversified into longer-term holdings, but I still have 0.5BTC, it's earning about 2% a day :)

Yes I understand the risks associated with using more than read-only APIs. The owner has specifically requested that APIs have withdrawals disabled, meaning that withdrawals cannot be made with APIs :)

Yes, I've made bad trades before if that's your question.

I think something like that is inevitable when you're trading with software, but it comes down to how you deal with those bags as a trader as well. I'll transfer them out and keep running the bot, then set manual sell orders :)

Seems like a whole lot of work and a whole lot of risk for ~110% ROI overtime lol

Eh, I would say that if you diversify well, and you run the right pairs with the right settings, you can make a decent return.

Look at the buy-ins and outs, you'll see that it sold at 339 and then bought back in at 324.

So for more specifics can I ask on Average what do you profit a day/week and what's your investment you are trading with? I understand it fluxes but I'm trying to figure out what I would have to invest in order to make the profit in looking for weekly with the amount of risk. For example I'm not going to let $100k in altcoins echange in risk of a crash or anything of the sort to make $100 a month lol

I started with 0.483 on the 17th, same account is at 0.521, which is just under 0.05 profit, so it's about 1.5% per day.

I'm also invested into other coins long term, this is similar for my idle capital that I don't know what to buy into. Most of the coins I'm trading aren't shit-coins either, so the idea is that if I bought into OMG and the price dropped short-term, I could transfer it out and set manual sell orders (or not), then keep the pair running and when the price rises again, it would sell off (It's not a loss until you sell it :-))

I started off with 0.05BTC, but I slowly upped my investment when I was tinkering and making profit.

As with any crypto-investment, I would recommend only investing what you're willing to lose though.

Took me about 2 weeks to make back the license price with an investment of 0.5BTC :)

I think the crypto-markets are inherently volatile, meaning that there's always large systematic risk.

Take these trades for example

You can see on the 21st, the bot made a trade before LSK crashed. My reaction to that was to wait out the crash, then transfer the amount out of my Gunbot account into my holding account, then set a manual sell order (or not), and let it continue trading.

From that one trade, dropping from 105 to 64 was an unrealised loss of about 40%, but by not selling it, I can wait out the market to increase again. If you look at LSK price now, I've made all those other minute trades, whilst recovering that initial bag at 105. I think with Gunbot, the important thing is to know when to transfer out and continue trading.

Edit: Missed the trade screenshot for the 21st.

I'm interested, but obviously spending this amount of money on a bot to then lose money using it would suck, when you 'lose', do you lose everything? Or do you just lose a small amount?

Over the past 30 days, have you lost much?

Appreciate your answers.

I've transferred out a few pairs (LSK and BAT) but my LSK ended up recovering and selling at a profit.

I've just updated my settings to place more weight on coins that are less likely to crash, so although profit is slower, it's 'safer' (as safe as crypto can be lul).

To answer your question, if you have capital to fund it, you never really make a loss unless the coin permanently crashes, and even then it's not like your portfolio is weighted 100% into that, it might be like 10%, and if it crashes 50%, you'll lose 5% in total (not ideal, but it happens).

Let me know if you have any other questions :)

I'm gonna be perfectly honest with you, 2% a day is if you're constantly updating and changing your settings (which I barely do). But yes, the reason I like Gunbot is because banks give you 3% on your savings a year (if you're lucky) XD.

There is no fuckin way you can claim to consistently get 2% a day. If you were capable of getting 2% a day, it'd be more profitable for you to sit 'updating the settings' than selling the products. Literally on a second by second basis you'd be making more money.. You could surpass bill gates in a few years with those profits. You'll have $3.5M by next year, $4.8B the year after and at your third year the entire world would run out of money for you to make (seriously, my calculator won't even display the number because it's too high).

I think it's common sense to anyone looking at this thread that a $500 product is not going to make you a multi-billionaire in two years.

Be that as it may, there are people doing this with hundreds of Bitcoin. PM me and I'll send you the link to the Telegram group of 2k people and you can check yourself :-)

In the current market, you could achieve more than an average of 2% a day if you're day trading or even short term trading and you know what you're doing. Look at NEO, XMR and LTC. If you chose your entry points wisely it could have been infinitely more profitable than 2% a day.

So your telling me that in three years your going to own all the money in the world?

Or for those people doing this with hundreds of bitcoin.. Let's say 200 bitcoin. Those people are going to be billionaires in less than a year, and will own all the money in the world in about 2 years. They will literally hit the crypto-currency market cap after about 54-55 weeks.

This is what your telling me. Seriously. That there are 2,000 people out there who next year will each own all the currency in the world within the next 1-2 years all because of this product. Like, we're talking hundreds of quadrillions here. Bruh are you gonna invest $100 million? The investment would be low based on the volume. Entry and exit should be faster in the volatile market. You could make 2% on constant day trading done on a bot. Couple of thousand $'s would be good on this. Won't be able to move large funds easily, if you wanna play this out.

That's what I was trying to get ol Neal to say. Yes, with small amounts 2% is easy.. But once you start moving into larger amounts of money (and trying to generate some kind of reasonable income for your time) then your going to have a lot of trouble.

I mean, if your only going to invest say, $1,000. Then what's the point fucking with your shiny new $500 program all day just for $20? And the more money you invest, the less returns your going to see until adding money is no longer beneficial for overall profit.

I do not claim 2% a day, I am simply saying that I have managed to get 2% with my current test. Obviously your returns depend on your risk, strategy and very heavily on the market, you win some you lose some.

As long as you're trading in pairs that have high volumes such as ETH, NEO etc. then your balance won't be enough to significantly change the price. But yes, I understand what you're saying and it's true, there's a cap on how much you can make, but that certainly outweighs the price of the bot.

Hi all, newbie member here! Okay so I bought this 1 week ago first using VPS and it sucked so much, all the time crashing and shutting down from many reasons. So I dumped VPS and started using my own computer. But the bot was working fine all the time (now staying up all the time). Not yet so much profit, maybe few percents at total (havent bothered just yet make calculations) compared to invested btc amount. Im gonna put this straight: This is not "hey just download it, press couple buttons and autoprotit". You gotta know what pairs to choose and setup it at least some reasonable parameters. Wouldnt be bad too knowing some basics of technical analysis. And what comes that 2% profit I think its calculated with simple interested -method?

Overall its been pretty damn good still, doing what im asking it to do.

Maybe im from hero to zero in few weeks (though that would be hard considering im running 24 pairs and i doubt all of them go to completely 0 btc worth) or not, lets say if i run this like month and make then better evaluation. Sorry for grammar guys, english is not my native language but trying to be realistic and truthful at least.

But the bot was working fine all the time (now staying up all the time). Not yet so much profit, maybe few percents at total (haven't bothered just yet make calculations) compared to invested btc amount. I'm gonna put this straight: This is not "hey just download it, press couple buttons and autoprotit". You gotta know what pairs to choose and setup it at least some reasonable parameters. Wouldn't be bad too knowing some basics of technical analysis. And what comes that 2% profit I think it's calculated with simple interested -method?

Overall it's been pretty damn good still, doing what I'm asking it to do.

Maybe I'm from hero to zero in few weeks (though that would be hard considering I'm running 24 pairs and I doubt all of them go to completely 0 btc worth) or not, let's say if I run this like month and make then better evaluation. Sorry for grammar guys, English is not my native language but trying to be realistic and truthful at least.

Thanks for the honest review. If you want to have a look at what I'm running and my settings, just shoot me a message and I'll show you some ways to maximise your profits :)

Well, I am interested although I do understand this isn't instant profit.

If I were to start with 0.1 BTC, how fast could I make the 0.09 it'd cost to purchase this, back.. realistically?

You're looking at probably at least 3 months, realistically 6 because the market is looking a bit unsustainable at the moment.

In that case, I don't really think this is for me.

I would appreciate your help very much and want to discuss a lot of stuff but I cant send you pm before I have 25 posts. ?

UPDATE: added 2 avg volume pairs yesterday, made some instant profit in few hours but hope those keep doing at least breakeven and does not dump right away..

Run pairs that have recently dumped and stabilized :-)

I've turned off for the last few days because I was expecting a crash LOL.

That was a right choice, im getting REKT here now :D having like 80% coins getting butthurt. But no problem being patient here.

Don't run shitcoins. Tats probably the best advice I can give you. I'm running 5, but MCO wiped out my profits for the last few days GG.

Thats good advice indeed.? Though im trying a little different approach here, if coin dumped like crazy and ive already bought it and its "bagging" i just keep going and reload so i can make trades more frequently at that level of price and if the price gets pump its time to cash and if not, bot is doing its basic job. Of course im assuming when doing this that coin is not going much lower anymore..

Gotta try all kinda things

That's what the 'Double-buy' feature under version 4+ is for, although I don't use it because you need heaps of capital to sustain smaller gains.

Oh i see. I have only version 3.3 on bittrex and using stepgain for both buy and sell. Thinking switching maybe sell stepgain to BB. And just modified time delay price a lot lower on all coins.

Don't lower it too much, or you'll end up with double-buys. I'm not running stepgain on Bittrex, it kind of only suits Poloniex imho.

yeah gotta watch those double buys, already sometimes doing it 120s setting! 2 buys done now and not yet double buy.. What is difference between Bittrex and Polo for not using stepgain?

I'm finding that Polo is good for SG, Bittrex is good for BB. I'm not a huge fan of version 4, but I'm doing some tests on Cryptopia at the moment for Gunthar, not as smooth as Polo and Bittrex though.

I wonder would people still buy gunbot for full price, while there is a discounted one.

Who needs it for 0.09 BTC per-exchange, when it's possible to purchase it for 0.033 BTC with all exchanges enabled?

Well you should really think about it. I mean really good. First there comes trust issues. Guy with 6 post, nothing else to say but sell and tell its cheap, cmon really. Im thinking this investment long run so no chance im gonna let go legit version with very good support and future updates etc for just that amount of btc. its more than buy a bot, its a channel too for better success and increased already my learning curve. Ive had already some very good conversations with people in group.

Well that is just from my perspective.

I think the community around Gunbot is what you're paying for, people are amazingly helpful, especially when everyone just wants to make money. How'd you handle the crash yesterday? :p

Yep that is so true! After all, everyone want to make some money there. Its barely not anyones loss if help each other, its the opposite actually. You help there and people will help you back.

Yesterday was very interesting ? Before work checked balance, about 10% down totally ONLY, I was so happy that I had so many coins at that time invested so I can take on dip much better than if investing like 3 coins with -30%.. But now its back already. Made also some manual trading too today. How'd you handle that crash? Any nasty big losses??

I had a few NEO buys at 61ish, ended up transferring out and retrading, ended up in profit after about a day or so.

Still down, maybe 1-2% overall, expecting it to recover today though, changed my settings to be a bit less aggressive :p

No worries, I started out on Bustabit and actually bought Gunbot as well with my profits LOL.

I've been trying to day-trade with my own portfolio, but I'm too stupid to make a sizable difference, so I've just gone back to botting :)

The balance you see is the initial balance though!

I've been thinking of purchasing gunbot for a bit now. How active is the community sub-forum on here? Are there good tutorials on setting up and what to really look for when trading?

Thanks!

Can we really make 1% per day ?

GEEG - October 28, 2017, 12:14 am

i've been making good money with my other method and want to expand and have more income sources and have been thinking about bottrading cryptocurrencies with gunbot or haasbot, looking for a solid 1-2% profits every single day, if that is possible, will be doing my research more and paying attention to this thread, I want to get into this by the end of the year or early next year!
