Linux would work best

MindOfLogic - August 13, 2017, 3:14 pm

Could I not use AWS? I'm more familiar with AWS.

I just want to ask.. With the instance types on cloud providers, GPU based instances are very expensive. GPU mining is significantly faster than using a CPU. Do you expect people to just use CPU for mining?

Eagle™ - August 13, 2017, 3:19 pm

Sent you a PM, interested.

This could be achieved using the Free Azure Credits*

What is the rate it can be mined with?

Swip3r - August 13, 2017, 9:03 pm

I'd definitely be willing to do this, can I still get the free trial for Azure? Is that still a thing?

Hacker - August 13, 2017, 9:22 pm

Really? In which instace??

With 30-35 MHz the profit is about $70 per month as for now.

That would be a NV12 Virtual machine.

You are true mate but it is very expensive ($2.185 per hour).

The free credits (about $200) are not enough even to setup this machine.

Why not a NV24 then?? lol ?

Hacker - August 15, 2017, 7:22 am

That would be $2.185 / hr. It runs for about 3 days with the free credits.

?owever, if it runs only for 3 days your total earnings are less than $2. Not even enough to payout from the pool...

Your calculations are way off. Guess another math class is in order ?
