Why are you selling a publicly available method...

Guys, you can't get "any name you want", this method was released for free by someone a few days ago.

You change your channel name to the first letter of the word you want, then go to your custom ID and enter the rest.

For example, you want /bamboo... You change your channel name to just "b".

Then when you go to change your URL it will say "youtube.com/c/b" and then they'll be a box to add what you want. You would then type in "amboo" ans your URL would be /bamboo.
