

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Is there a service that gives you a phone number and redirects sms's to you?

Goodbye123123 - August 17, 2017, 6:19 pm

So long story short my girlfriend is in a different country for a few months and can only sms other people in that country, is there a service that will give me a number in that country and forward all the messages to my phone?

Thanks

Moon Rock - August 17, 2017, 6:20 pm

(Aug 17, 2017 06:19 PM)Bionic Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So long story short my girlfriend is in a different country for a few months and can only sms other people in that country, is there a service that will give me a number in that country and forward all the messages to my phone?

Thanks

Why can't you use a free sms provider that uses other countries? I feel like that would be easier then a service. Maybe something like TextNow but located in another country.

Goodbye123123 - August 17, 2017, 6:21 pm

(Aug 17, 2017 06:20 PM)Moon Rock Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why can't you use a free sms provider that uses other countries? I feel like that would be easier then a service. Maybe something like TextNow but located in another country.

Good idea, do you know any located in Denmark?

Renovatum - August 17, 2017, 6:24 pm

(Aug 17, 2017 06:20 PM)Moon Rock Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why can't you use a free sms provider that uses other countries? I feel like that would be easier then a service. Maybe something like TextNow but located in another country.

Yeah stop using Lycra and get a proper provider.

A lot of them offer free roaming

Moon Rock - August 17, 2017, 11:48 pm

(Aug 17, 2017 06:21 PM)Bionic Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Good idea, do you know any located in Denmark?

No I do not, I don't use the apps myself. Just thought of the idea. Maybe it asks when you create the account and you choose the area code.

Mr Meeseeks - August 17, 2017, 11:50 pm

You could try using something like Textplus through a VPN? I am pretty sure that you can receive normal texts through that, but I have not used this app in awhile.

SIM-82498 - August 17, 2017, 11:58 pm

Is she going to have access to internet on her phone? You can just use any chat app such as WhatsApp, Facebook Chat, Telegram, etc.

Goodbye123123 - August 18, 2017, 6:37 am

(Aug 17, 2017 11:50 PM)Mr Meeseeks Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You could try using something like Textplus through a VPN? I am pretty sure that you can receive normal texts through that, but I have not used this app in awhile. Good Idea, ill give this a shot.

If anyone has more ideas let me know.