Thread: Rate My Web Design

Whipped up something for my pal, AvessoVision.

Opinions please.

* I'm aware of a few small spacing errors - ignore them, I'm too lazy to go back and fix.

I really like it! I like the fact that it looks professional and it's not all over the place. Most designers would throw a lot more color in there when it's not needed.

You did a really nice job on this one.

The image you use in your footer (clouds), I happen to use on my own website as well ;) I got it from Pexels, I guess so did you?

If your friend is also a web designer and this is being advertised on the site, why did you have to make it if I may ask.

I run Influence's graphic division. I wanted to keep my activity up and couldn't find any inspiration so I did this as a little project to keep myself from getting rusty.

Also, no. I got mine from Unsplash. :)

This was something he wanted to do, not in particular for me. I'm just the "model" for him to use in a web/portofolio design.

Yes I am a graphic designer as well and I have left him a proper feedback commentary on the Influence group where he also posted the design.

Yet again I am proud that he managed to pull it off with a few mistakes here and there, but it's nothing I haven't told him about in the group.

This is one hell of a lovely design. Good combination of colors.

I would rate it 9.5/10.

Cheers.

There's too much to explain. Also, it's HTML and CSS mainly, not Javascript.

Watch this.

So there is a way lol... your video is an hour long so ill just take your word... i thought everything was done through CSS.. im guessing there are a lot of image mapping

It's a little off with the 3 "skills" as they go all the way to the edges, where the rest of the page is keeping a similar grid all the way through.

The device in the header is a bit too close to the navbar, since you keep a pretty good spacing of everything else, even though the portfolio part is pretty close to the edge at the top as well. But you told us to ignore those, thought I'd point it out anyway

That looks sick as hell, great job man, I'm jealous. I like the clean-ness.

LeonBackward - August 20, 2017, 2:23 am

It's nice. I like it. The only fault is, in my opinion, I feel there is too much white space leftover in the second section. Otherwise fine.

This is good. Have you taken formal education in graphic design?

8/10
Really digging the design, but here are a few suggestions: Can't distinguish the AV from the logo -- remove the border around the header logo and make the logo larger

Increase the padding around "View my latest work" and make the arrow smaller

Top and bottom margin of portfolio section don't match

Move the about section above portfolio

Add a shadow to the product markups

Not digging the double nav bar -- why two?

Maybe make the footer logo smaller and add some social media links?

I don't like the separate black background around "Designed by Lukas." Why not keep it transparent?

Seems too basic content-wise. Add more sections?

BobelX - September 7, 2017, 4:20 am

It's not too simple yet not too complicated. You did great :)

Lanve - September 7, 2017, 10:38 am

This looks amazing my man.

The spacing really drives me insane, lol. I like the first two sections of the thread design (apart from the spacing) but then it gets kind of "block"-y if you understand me. Like 7 blocks in the last two sections all with a different background looks quite bad. And then lastly the "copyright" tag in the bottom right corner? Not sure what it is doing there literally touching the corners.

But yeah, first two sections are nice.

Edit: You run a service where you call yourself a "web developer"? Yet you are lacking basic skills such as spacing. ?

I don't know what you mean by blocky. And I mess around with the credits at the bottom on every design to see what I like best, it's not a part of the design.

I refer to myself as a web developer because I am. I've never said I was the best as I'm not, I'm an amateur. I value feedback, yours in specific as you know what you're talking about, but it sounds like you're taking shots at my skill. Any errors created within the Photoshop form of the design are ALWAYS corrected when I apply code with proper spacing.
