Thread: [\[NEW\] Discord Crasher \[CRASH DISCORD CHATS\]](#)

? Soufian ? - August 25, 2017, 4:07 pm

Hello guys,

I've just discovered this nice "exploit" in Discord which can actually let Discord crash or for some people cause a BSOD due to their CPU usage maxing out.

But the lag is guaranteed to work on 95% of the people you send it to.

How it works:

1. Send this link to the person you want to crash: <http://c99.nl/discord/>

(This can also work for Discord servers, but "Link preview" must be on.)

Be aware it could also crash your own Discord.

So after sending it, try to click on another Discord chat right after you press enter to send the link.

Let me know if this worked out for you guys. ?

you took advantage of webpack module bug for rendering embeds in discord on chromium based apps/browsers as you spammed html page to death with meta data and content so embed renderer isn't able to handle it Doesn't matter how I did it. It works, that's the main important goal. ?

The Slash - August 25, 2017, 4:14 pm

This definitely works. Also my discord crashes to! Its still awesome do :D

SORRIE - August 25, 2017, 4:14 pm

Dude this is an awesome exploit thanks for sharing!

It's know bug and got patched long time ago on dev build so it is pretty much useless when new patch is released for canary, ptb and main release

Then let people enjoy it before getting patched. ;)

this is just a bug not exploit as you dont get to do anything with it only make embed renderer get overloaded

Problem is for you to enjoy user has to use desktop app or chromium based browser and over 50% of traffic is coming over mobile phones

Eh..

Did you know Discord is mainly made for Gamers?

So I'm pretty sure the mobile traffic might be 10 to 20%.

EnigmaCenter - August 25, 2017, 4:25 pm

Just tested this on a few servers. It crashed a few of them.

Yea i do know it was made on base idea for gamers but community got overtaken by programmers.

It's fact that traffic is ~50%+ from mobile

I highly doubt you're a Discord developer, by looking at your posts and such.

EDIT:

If you reply... I might reply in 12 hrs or so, I'm about to sleep right now.

Correct me if I'm wrong but I think he means he develops things for discord, like maybe bots n stuff.

I made few tests about this method, this only works for desktop app not for ---->store app <--- (Windows 8/10).

If you want your exploit stay invisible and safe just send them via Microsoft Edge store app and then remove it after 5 seconds, they will crash and cannot see the exploit link.

I already explained it's bug with webpack embed renderer in chromium based apps/browsers.
No need to hide the link when it's not bannable unless done on official guilds

OG-SB - August 25, 2017, 8:14 pm

Absolutely but remember people can see that exploit and then they will know who is doing that and then they will kick you.

They can't even click on channel without killing embed renderer so how will they see who did it unless they will use firefox/mobile

Granny Bacon - August 26, 2017, 2:05 am

I talked to a discord staff member in a server I am in, he said they already patched it in the next update and it will roll out today or tomorrow.

At least be clear when you say "Discord Developer".

Because I thought you meant you were a part of their team with 80 people.

But I'm a Discord developer as well then, nothing special about it.

(Aug 25, 2017 04:16 PM)Black Cat Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) this is just a bug not exploit as you dont get to do anything with it only make embed renderer get overloaded

An exploit (from the English verb to exploit, meaning "to use something to one's own advantage") is a piece of software, a chunk of data, or a sequence of commands that takes advantage of a bug or vulnerability to cause unintended or unanticipated behavior to occur on computer software, hardware, or something electronic

Also, looking for bug patches in dev builds is a great way to find short term exploits.
