Thread: Living in Mexico Half of The Year

Tony Stark Sucks - August 28, 2017, 2:04 am

My job pays well and I live close to Mexico. I also work for about six months and then take six months off. I was thinking about taking my time off in Puerto Vallarta since living costs are so cheap and my job requires me to move around so I never have a permanent home. Thoughts?

Living costs in Mexico are extremely cheap and my job pays well enough for me to live 6 months off the job with my savings and unemployment. I found a nice studio apartment in Mexico with all utilities included, cable and wifi as well for $350 a month.

Plus easy access to prescriptions.

That would be ideal for your situation, you'd save tons of money and if you like Mexico, why not? Give it a shot for a month and see if you like it enough to stay 5 more.

Puerto is nice if you're near the resorts or expensive part of town. A little ghetto on the outskirts if you ask me.

Yea, just keep up with the basic laws an news and you should be safe. Mexico economy has been doing decently well.

I plan to visit there soon actually
