Thread: [\[Shopify Video\] How I run my \$8,793 USD Shopify Dropshipping Store. | Instagram & FB](#)

SIM-1567847 - September 5, 2017, 7:09 pm

What's going on HackForums,

As some of you guys might know I run a pretty decent Shopify store using Instagram influencers mainly, and I use Instagram as my main method of advertising.

[Video: https://youtu.be/tld_GxfZcfg]

This is not some secret concept, but a lot of you guys are doing it wrong.

I will get it started on some key topics, maybe not building a store from scratch but I will be going over marketing methods I use.

Bluffer - September 5, 2017, 7:40 pm

Fuck yeah man! Looking forward to this as I just got into Shopify and am working on growing my Instagram for it right now.

Why don't you advertise in Facebook, it's not bad at all. Also Youtube would help you much too. You will work a lil harder but it would be worth

In my first video I go over how I run my Shopify stores.

Instagram influencers (with bigger influencers like 100k-500k).
Then I ensure the Facebook pixel is setup, so I can create a look-a-like audience once I get around 750-1000 orders, you can even use abandoned carts to create an audience which is really good as well.

Then I can sell the store after, so anybody who is curious in short term profits as well (of like $2,000).

Shopify was great until I realized I was losing customers because I was unable to process credit cards. Around 40% of the income is via CC, and not being able to get a credit card processor was painful.

Best opportunity for those from US/UK/CA. For everybody else, it's a pain without CC! :)

So few questions if you dont mind answering them!

I have this shopify store, based on not on very saturated niche! I have spent over 100$ In advertisement and instagram shoutouts I have only got 3 sales so far! I am really confused whether I should just give up or continue on it, Its been only 15 days so far and another question when we buy from aliexpress e-packet does not the customer get the bill? For eg I put something on my shopify store for 15 and someone purchases it and then I deliver it to his address will he not get the real bill of the item that it only costs 10$ On aliexpress?

If the niche is not saturated; is there competition and are you sure it's working for others?

If you spent $100 on ads and got 3 sales, that means you either got the wrong influencers picked or your site wasn't optimized well for mobile, you can send me a PM with links to both options and I can take a look.

You don't need to worry about e-Packet delivery and clients getting the bill, most of them won't care.

As far as I'm aware it depends on the supplier if the receipt is provided or not.

Usually people could care less as long as the product is as advertised.

As someone who use to make a living off Content Creation I want to give you some tips

You spent a lot of time on IG Ads, and finding people - this added a lot of fluff to the video. I personally would try to find like 5 examples before 2 that work 3 that don't and break it down quick. Overall the video was great, FB Pixel is amazing - +1 on that

But when you buy it for your customers with your credit card, won't your name be listed the product package? Or any details relating to the buyer?

OP, please make a noob friendly tutorial step by step if you can? It would great. YouTube tutorials in arched were incomplete.

And, that shopify 'shipping from' address, will this address and my phone number be listed anywhere on the store?

And epacket shipping is only available to few countries like US and UK. But it isn't available for any other country like India, Netherlands and it takes them like 30-50 days to ship an item there.
What to do with this thing?

1. Their shipping details will be on the package, your credit card billing details are not put on the label.

2. I don't have enough time at the moment for a noob friendly step by step tutorial.

3. Yes, it will be available in your Terms of Service and refund policy among some other page sources.

I usually go about sending them a direct message on Instagram, but that works really well once your store account has 10k+ followers if you have lower than 10k followers they probably will think you are a joke and not go about direct messaging you back.

But at the end of the day, I always use email as it's a super convenient way to get their attention. Sometimes influencers are lazy but as long as you have their email they think it's serious.

I'm afraid of using FB ads. Once I used it. It proved to be totally useless to me.

The reason why I'm giving up on dropshipping, shopify, aliexpress is because of the TRAFFIC. Traffic is always the only problem. With FB ads it's not sure that they will certainly buy the products.. Isn't it?

As I said in the video: I do not test with FB ads, I use the pixel data to scale the store using Lookalike Audiences. If your data is good (600-800 orders) that is more than enough to scale.

Traffic isn't always the problem, it's all about conversion rate and how interested your traffic is. Also you can find your winning product using influencers, you don't need to only use FB ads.

That's always the hardest part - finding a niche.

The thing I like is that if I see a niche with competition (not like fidget spinners but something reasonable), then I try and enter it and see how it goes.

Pixel data is just for tracking data right? How to get traffic other than paying influencers.
I'm just afraid to invest in a domain, shopify monthly fees, and it isn't easy at all.

Brand awareness is the KEY. But question is how to increase your brand awareness without investing money or with little money.

Do you have any tips in regard to running the site?

My shopify free trial has run out and I can't afford to pay monthly for a service I might not make any money from.

I wish FB would let me drive traffic for free :).

Unfortunately, You have to pay to drive traffic.

Instagram can make you sales, yes. However, I'd test a product on Facebook first then do ads on Instagram for it.

Hmm okay so.. I thought about a niche just a while ago and it is 'beauty & makeup'. , I went on IG, searched hashtags 'makeup tutorial' and many of them had a link in bio that led to their online store which was obviously a shopify store as I could see shopify written at the bottom. One store had 'sold out' tag on almost every product.

So, will women really buy such stuff at a cheaper price from a store that has only been advertised on either FB ads or IG ads...without being skeptical about the products because after all it's a matter of death and life for them I mean their SKIN & BEAUTY haha. What are your thoughts about this NICHE?

Hey Mateo, impressive earnings! Keep doing your thing! I watched your video, didn't know about that FB Look alike ads so thanks for this information. I've been running a store for 1 week now. I had 446 visits and 5 orders. I'm doing okay, I just wish my conversion rate was a bit higher. I'm not exactly sure why I'm not converting more. Like today, I'm at 45 visits, no sales... If you have any tips for that, that would be appreciated! I'm running straight FB ads though. I'll try to do IG influencers this week. I was wondering if the following is good: making a page for my store, put the link in my bio and redirect people to my page from the shoutout?

One thing for sure is I'll never stop trying until I make it.

STPhoneUnlocks - October 17, 2017, 11:19 am

Solid video! I never knew how dropshipping worked. Do you order the items and stock them then ship them out yourself or do you put in the buyers address when they purchase the product on your shopify?

One thing for sure is I'll never stop trying until I make it.
What's your conversion rate at the moment? I aim to get a 3% conversion rate and usually I have around 450-500 visitors on my site per day. Sending traffic is everything, and usually, with influencers, you will get good conversion rates either way.

I order them from AliExpress and they get shipped to the customer's address.

My CR is 1.20%. I do the "Free just pay shipping" business model so perhaps I get more traffic than I would usually. So far about 70 visits per day. It is so random, yesterday I had 2 orders and 70$ in earnings, today zero lol. I guess I'll keep learning and try to aim at least 3% CR. Thanks!

Another thing, what is the best way to keep track of your finances? Do you have an application? Use Excel sheets? Like I has been one week and I'm already overwhelmed with all the numbers to track (fb ads, shopify and apps subscription, earnings, item price, etc.)

Awesome earnings, how do you go about finding the perfect product? I'm very experienced in running webshops etc. but I always struggle to find the right product.

I tried making a shopify store but they require creditcards?

CabbageMan - June 15, 2018, 3:35 pm

Liked the tutorial. Curious on average cost you pay per post for Instagram influencers? I'm sure it varies with folowers and time post is up.
