

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: College is just a MYTH!

.Reef - September 8, 2017, 3:13 pm

All jokes, saw this in the stall at my college and thought it was funny

Cagey - September 8, 2017, 3:41 pm

Did the man who created highschool go to highschool o.o

unovu - September 8, 2017, 3:47 pm

Lmfao! i feel like this when i have a lot of hw, but i genuinely think you dont need college, when you have connections, thats what really matters, tbh.

Cagey - September 8, 2017, 3:47 pm

(Sep 8, 2017 03:47 PM)unovu Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Lmfao! i feel like this when i have a lot of hw, but i genuinely think you dont need college, when you have connections, thats what really matters, tbh.

Depends on the job or industry.

Prawnster - September 8, 2017, 3:48 pm

They stealing quotes off of that motivational speaker fella, I've forgotten his name but I remember seeing him doing some video that was "suing the school system" and this was somewhere in there lol

FederalReserveOSRS - September 8, 2017, 3:49 pm

Heard it from hopsin - fly

funny thought ^_^

unovu - September 8, 2017, 3:50 pm

(Sep 8, 2017 03:47 PM)ODEa Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Depends on the job or industry.

yeah, true that too. For my first job, I worked at bk and I didn't need an interview bc my mom new the manager :(,

i lowkey hated it there.

Cagey - September 8, 2017, 4:04 pm

(Sep 8, 2017 03:50 PM)unovu Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) yeah, true that too. For my first job, I worked at bk and I didn't need an interview bc my mom new the manager :(,

i lowkey hated it there.

Almost all my jobs I knew the person and I'm very well connected in my community so I've always been able to pull some good jobs. It was dope

unovu - September 8, 2017, 4:06 pm

(Sep 8, 2017 04:04 PM)ODEa Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Almost all my jobs I knew the person and I'm very well connected in my community so I've always been able to pull some good jobs. It was dope lucky but props to you bc you probably help your community unlike me, so you deserve it. I should probably get more involved.

Kuri - September 8, 2017, 6:52 pm

College is important depending on the degree you want.

Woods - September 8, 2017, 6:53 pm

Did the man who really made this, make this? Hmmm okay then.

Cagey - September 8, 2017, 6:59 pm

(Sep 8, 2017 06:52 PM)Ebxy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) College is important depending on the degree you want. Mainly for professional schools.

VirtualFrost - September 8, 2017, 7:05 pm

This is some /r/showerthoughts kinda stuff haha

(Sep 8, 2017 03:47 PM)ODEa Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Depends on the job or industry.

Totally agree with this being one factor, another factor can be if you have connections, another being say around the tech industry, if you build something amazing, companies will be more than willing to hire you as they know your potential. People can bash on college/university, but in the end, it still lands people jobs, whether they network with companies during their studies or if having their qualification lands them a job. Definitely isn't for everyone though that's for sure.

Cagey - September 8, 2017, 7:08 pm

(Sep 8, 2017 07:05 PM)VirtualFrost Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This is some /r/showerthoughts kinda stuff haha

Totally agree with this being one factor, another factor can be if you have connections, another being say around the tech industry, if you build something amazing, companies will be more than willing to hire you as they know your potential. People can bash on college/university, but in the end, it still lands people jobs, whether they network with companies during their studies or if having their qualification lands them a job. Definitely isn't for everyone though that's for sure.

Tech wise you can get any position if you know people that's the beauty of tech. Most college students / graduates aren't actually very knowledgeable of coding and such than a self taught individual. Unless of course it's engineering then that's a whole new animal.

The Blank Never Loses - September 8, 2017, 7:39 pm

My job requires a degree. My industry needs a degree. Most jobs with specialized skills will require a degree. Most likely if your degree awards a Bachelors of Science, your industry probably requires a degree.

(Sep 8, 2017 07:08 PM)ODEa Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Tech wise you can get any position if you know people that's the beauty of tech. Most college students / graduates aren't actually very knowledgeable of coding and such than a self taught individual. Unless of course it's engineering then that's a whole new animal.

Tech is an area where you can learn more outside of college than inside college. (Programming)

Engineering is different, of course.

Larceny - September 8, 2017, 7:41 pm

(Sep 8, 2017 03:47 PM)ODEa Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Depends on the job or industry.

I feel like people strongly overestimate the necessity of a degree in the majority of the fields though.

Unless a degree is a STRICT requirement for a field (something like engineering, med, etc.), after you land your first job in the field, you're golden. That experience will mean more.

Soulmate~?? - September 8, 2017, 7:45 pm

Yeah it's from a song.

<https://youtu.be/5MitZ-C0tgQ?t=31>

Cagey - September 8, 2017, 7:46 pm

(Sep 8, 2017 07:41 PM)Larceny Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I feel like people strongly overestimate the necessity of a degree in the majority of the fields though.

Unless a degree is a STRICT requirement for a field (something like engineering, med, etc.), after you land your first job in the field, you're golden. That experience will mean more.

Of course, experience is going to outweigh the degree in most cases unless engineering or medicine

VirtualFrost - September 8, 2017, 8:18 pm

(Sep 8, 2017 07:08 PM)ODEa Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Tech wise you can get any position if you know people that's the beauty of tech. Most college students / graduates aren't actually very knowledgeable of coding and such than a self taught individual. Unless of course it's engineering then that's a whole new animal. That's true, not all areas you can be self-taught right in your own home. Thanks to how easy web development is to learn I've been very slowly progressing around it for years.

cottoncandied - September 8, 2017, 8:45 pm

i didn't think a specific person invented college. i never thought about how people came up with the idea of going to college. i just kind of accepted it as something that's always been in existence

Corpse - September 8, 2017, 10:04 pm

That's some jaden smith level deepness right there.

.Reef - September 8, 2017, 11:58 pm

(Sep 8, 2017 10:04 PM)CORPSE. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That's some jaden smith level deepness right there. say that fam

-888- - September 9, 2017, 1:03 am

college isnt mandatory but just depends on what you wanna do. If you need college experience for your job then you need to go

2073436 - September 9, 2017, 1:05 am

(Sep 8, 2017 03:50 PM)unovu Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) yeah, true that too. For my first job, I worked at bk and I didn't need an interview bc my mom new the manager :(, i lowkey hated it there.
yeah if your goal is to work at bk
then yeah, just connections will do fine for your life

maranathabuton - September 9, 2017, 5:44 am

In the first place, I don't understand why the title says that college is a myth. :D It's a reality. If there would be a better approach to learning, and for sure there is, College doesn't have to look so bad. College doesn't have to make students depressed and hate it for being institutionalized. If things have been done on a much more better approach, we could all just live the life we are given and not stress too much on things that are irrelevant in this very short life of ours.