Thread: Hack Forums News // Edition 360 - 9/11/17

Hydra - September 11, 2017, 4:28 pm

Stop the Thread Editing Abuse!

Due to members junking old, unwanted threads, Omniscient removed the Junk feature a while back. With that being said, this left members unable to junk the threads that they possibly made when they first joined the website and are now embarrassing to look at. Everyone has those types of threads so do not try and hide that. With that being said, members have found a way to get around this Junk feature removal by just simply editing their threads. Members are editing them by changing the title to, "closed" or "junk" and removing the body (content) of the thread and replacing it with "Please junk this thread", "Please ignore this" and so much more. There is no way Omni would remove the editing feature because everyone needs to use it; everyone makes mistakes, however, members are getting banned for doing this. The staff team is doing a good job on cracking down those who are abusing the editing feature and are banning members for months. Heck, you may even get hit by a closed account by Omni who has been closing members for doing this. If you do not want to take this seriously, then take a look at the bans page if you are an Ub3r member. Be warned, Hack Forums.

No More Discussions in Weekly Reports

iHydra has changed the rule that allowed members to participate in discussions in the Weekly Reports thread. In the past, members were allowed to give their opinions and feedbacks on things reported. Times have changed because now iHydra is requiring members to stop doing that and ask that you please discuss things that were reported in our weekly edition threads instead. Absolutely no discussion posts will be tolerated and your post will be reported. In the past, staff members were told to ignore the reports, but now your post will be junked. >>Source

Interview - ScreemS \(Click to View\)

Tsundere: Hello and welcome to the 360 edition of the Hack Forums News. Today we have the user ScreemS with us today. Would you like to give any shout-outs before we begin?

ScreemS: Big shout out to my man Makaveli the Ape

Tsundere: First off, congrats on becoming a leader of the group Influence. Do you mind sharing how that all went down?

ScreemS: Thanks so much, I joined influence when the first recruitment thread went up and I started helping out around the group bringing new ideas to the tabel. After a while Makaveli asked me if I was interested in a position as an assistant leader, which I took with pride and honor. After doing more work for the group I was added as a leader on HF.

Tsundere: With groups constantly changing and new owners coming in and out, the purpose of groups change all the time. I don't mean disrespect asking this, but what would you describe Influence as? A group of members willing to assist the community of Hack Forums, a group to come together to share ideas in a private, respectable setting? What would you personally describe Influence as?

ScreemS: Influence is a place for members to share their knowledge about subjects they specialise themselves in and work together to create projects that will influence the community in a positive way.

Tsundere: With that being said, is there anything you would like to change about the HF community itself? If you were Omni for a day, what is one thing you would like to do to, whether it be a silly thing or something beneficial.

ScreemS: I would love to revive the VIP section for upgraded members. It used to be one big clusterfuck, but I think we can make something of it if we just behave, lol.

Tsundere: That was definitely a fun time back in the days. Did you ever participate in the Upgraded Members Lounges that went on?

ScreemS: Yeah I used to roam around them a lot, I am not a big lounge poster myself, but I love reading through them haha Tsundere: When speaking to older members I like to ask, "what makes you stay committed to HF?" As people grow older, their lives change. They get jobs, they meet new people, or they just lost interest in HF. A lot of the older members I once knew are all gone. Would you say that most of your friends are still active on the website or not? Also, what keeps you motivated to stay on Hack Forums?

ScreemS: Most of the members that I used to hang around with back in the days are either banned, changed, or just left the forum. My commitment to HF comes from the feeling that it gives me. HF has always been a place where I can just read hour upon hours of threads and not get bored. Especially now that I lead Influence I am more motivated than ever.

Tsundere: That's awesome to see that you are still interested in logging in everyday and participating in the community. Since joining in 2013, you've seen HF progress for the better or for the worse. What do you personally think is the correct answer? Do you believe all the work and changes Omniscient pushes out is for the better of Hack Forums, or unnecessary?

ScreemS: Some of the changes that Omni made are awesome, and he is defenitely seeing the bigger picture when it comes to how the forum runs in the future. The only change that slightly bothered me was the rep kill removal, I always thought it was a way for members to be punished for what they did, but they would still be able to enjoy and read through the forum as they used to.

Tsundere: Personally, I've never had any bad experiences with Omni. But that's because I never quote him or contact him unless it's needed. You see people constantly sending him messages to kiss-butt, etc. That's just not me. Anyways, I understand talking about the past can be a little tiresome. So, what I'd like to ask you is do you have any current projects you are working on? Whether it be programming an application, doing graphic design. What's ScreemS up to these days.

ScreemS: I have been very busy with Influence and making sure that it is moving in the right direction, besides that I started a new study in cinematography, so I have been focussing on VFX and Photography. I hope to open a Premiere Pro guide and helpdesk very soon :)

Tsundere: How long have you been into VFX and Photography? Would you say you spend most of your free time working on those things?

ScreemS: I have been into Photography for a good 3 years now. VFX are more on the new side for me, I know my ways around Premiere Pro, but when it comes to After Effects and adding choppers and big explosions to things I still have lots to learn, lol. Most of my free time is spent working on edits for companies, or spending time playing guitar.

Tsundere: Have you ever done any edits for movies or even video games? For example, I suppose a Call of Duty montage. I know it sounds cliché as hell when you think of video game editing, but something along those lines. NEW MESSAGES

ScreemS: Never done anything along the lines of video game edits, they have never bothered me that much. I mainly do wedding edits, shortfilms, or company commercials

Tsundere: Before we go, I have one last question to ask. For someone looking to get into VFX and photography, what advice would you give them when first starting out? NEW MESSAGES

ScreemS: There is always one thing I say to everyone that wants to get into those kind of things, don't buy expensive shit, just keep going, and watch fuckloads of YouTube videos. These days YouTube videos can teach you so much it's incredible.

Tsundere: Thank you, ScreemS for taking the time out of your day/night to do this interview with me. I hope you enjoyed it. Would you like to say any final things before we end this interview?

ScreemS: It's 3:10 AM, time to go to sleep, lol. Thanks for taking the time to interview me, it was an honor.

We encourage all members to discuss the news in either the latest news edition or Breaking News thread (if applicable). So what's Breaking News? It's a new experimental idea we have for everyone. Anytime there is a major happening on HF that is pretty damn time sensitive, we'll write up a Quick Thread about it and will be a live rolling thread with updates either within OP or in additional posts. That's the gist of it. We won't be making these threads if Mr. Robot gets closed, he's not that worthy of it. But if when API V2 releases, expect a BREAKING NEWS. Me try be funny.

Super Sexuality Sleuthing Artificial Intelligence is on the Case

That is right; this artificial intelligence has learned to distinguish between homosexual and heterosexual male faces which were taken from an anonymous dating site with an astonishing success rate of 91 percent. Meanwhile, humans given the same task were able to pick out which faces were gay 61 percent of the time. It is also worth mentioning that the averages for distinguishing gay females are lower across the board; the AI managed 83 percent, and humans pushed out a meager 54 percent. This research may have dangerous implications for those living in parts of the world where homosexuality is illegal. This could be seen as a grim look into our future, however interesting the study actually is. >>Source

The More Wine Costs, the Better it Tastes?

All you wine connoisseurs on Hack Forums will want to pay close attention to this. As I'm sure many of you know in the technology space, for the most part, you get what you pay for. Associating higher quality with a better product is a phenomenon called marketing placebo. Researchers at the INSEAD Business School and the University of Bonn decided to put it to the test. Now onto their testing methodology, they showed subjects a price tag then gave them a quarter of a teaspoon of wine and had them rate it on a scale of 1 to 10. They then tested a second wine with a price tag of $14. People were more enthusiastic about what they thought was the more expensive wine across the board. >>Source

What We Know So Far as Hurricane Irma Lashes Florida

Those currently in Florida or have relatives there, you are in the people's prayers. It is not any new news about Hurricane Irma, but it is still taking its course in Florida. Thankfully, the Hurricane is slowing down with a speed of 70 MPH and is now only a tropical storm, but many houses have been destroyed and trees knocked down. Over 6 million people are currently in Florida with no power and many people are currently in shelters either out of state or in the state. Flood warnings are being sent out to those who have access to service on their phone and people are being advised to continue staying indoors. Over the weekend, 10 lives were lost on the island of Cuba due to Irma. Sadly, two of the 10 that passed from the Hurricane was on a bus when they were struck by debris from a falling building above them. Islands in the Caribbean have requested help from the British government. They have requested assistance in the rebuilding of their island next week after the Hurricane passes. >>Source

IS Attack on Sinai Convoy 'Kills 18 Egyptian Police'

Security sources say that 18 Egyptian Police officers were killed in the Sinai peninsula, which is in the northeastern part of Egypt. The Egyptian convoy was hit in el-Arish by a roadside bomb that had destroyed three of the vehicles in the convoy. A Fourth one was also destroyed, but instead of a bomb it was supposedly tampered with by signal-jamming equipment. Those were were lucky to survive the bombings were soon faced with militants who were armed with machine guns and then layed fire on the surviving Egyptian policemen. >>Source

The Xiaomi Mi Mix 2 is Smaller And Faster

As explanations of the plan in smartphone configuration go, it's difficult to think about a more grounded one than the first Mi Mix. Calling it a "concept phone" and drawing on the abilities of unbelievable architect Philippe Starck, Xiaomi assembled a moderate chunk ruled by a gigantic screen with small bezels that foreshadowed the greatest pattern in 2017's cell phones.

Lamentably, it wasn't the most reasonable smartphone to use. Be that as it may, now, merely under a year later, Xiaomi is prepared to uncover a continuation — and on first look, the Mi Mix 2 resembles a telephone that you'd be significantly more prone to need to live with.

The phone is all the more adjusted, really, in a break from the sharp lines utilized already. The aluminum outline encompasses a clay back board, and Xiaomi is additionally discharging an extraordinary version Mi Mix 2 that it cases will be the primary ever telephone to utilize a full unibody earthenware plan. The venue is aimed at professional gamers and those who enjoy watching competitive gameplay. Inside you will find top-notch designs you typically see in any arena. Seats for fans to sit in, a control room, and high-quality audio systems. In addition, training rooms will be created in the arena for teams to practice and get ready prior to their match that day. The arena will be opening for its very first match in October where Blizzard will be hosting an Overwatch competition. A little after that, Hearthstone competition will be heading towards what Blizzard hopes to be calling their arena, Blizzard Arena. >>Source

Four More Free Mega Stones In Pokemon Sun And Moon Available Now

In celebration of the upcoming new Pokemon game, Nintendo is releasing four more mega stones to evolve your Pokemon! If you want to get your hands on a mega stone for Ampharos, Altaria, Latios and Latias then you are in for a treat. As always, it is the same way to receive your gift from Nintendo. However, if you do not know how to get your mega stone gift, follow these instructions here. First, you want to load up your game and head to the start menu where you see Lunala or Solgaleo depending on your version of Sun and Moon that you own. From there, you want to head over to Mystery Gift. You do not want to load your saved game! Once you click on Mystery Gift, you are one step closer. Second, you want to choose the option, "Choose to receive you gift "via code/password." Awesome! Second to last, type in this exact code, "DRACHE" when prompted to enter a code for the stones. Lastly, you want to head over to any Pokemon Center and speak to the delivery man. After speaking to him, he will gladly give you your four new mega stones! Congrats! Please note that all four of these Pokemon are not in the vanilla (original version) copy of the game and must be traded in from other games using the PokeBank feature in the Nintendo App Store.

Instagram: Celebrity Contact Details Leaked After Nude Bieber Photos Posted

Whether you like Bieber or not is completely up to you, but hearing something like this may either be a good thing or a bad thing. If you are a true Bieber hater, you are probably laughing at this, but if you are a Belieber then you are probably thinking many other things. Not too long ago, pop star Selena Gomez had her Instagram hacked. From that, information of other big celebrities was exposed, including nude images of her ex-boyfriend Justin Bieber. Things like emails and phone numbers of high-profile people were also obtained from this hack. Instagram states that the breach into Selena's account was due to a bug inside of the API. Since the hack, Instagram has said that the bug is now fixed and that no passwords of Instagram users were gathered. Surprisingly enough, the hacker had uploaded these nude photos of Bieber onto her feed, which if you were not familiar with her following over 125 million people had access to see Justin Bieber in the nude. After gaining access to her account, Selena had deleted the photos from her public profile. >>Source

Hackers Can Silently Control Siri, Alexa & Other Voice Assistants Using Ultrasound

How interesting would it be to control voice-controlled programs and applications, such as Siri by using ultrasound? As scary as that may sound, it is also a little interesting you have to say. This new tactic can now have your iPhone open malicious links, send unwanted text messages to your friends and maybe even play weird noises out of your Amazon Alexa. Given the title of "DolphinAttack", Siri, Alexa, or any other voice assistant applications or programs are affected by this "hack" by hearing commands in an ultrasound frequency. What makes this frightening is that humans cannot hear these commands, but the AI bots microphone can pick it up like you are blasting Metallica in through your ear pods. Imagine walking through the mall, about to ask Siri where the closest Starbucks is from your current location, and your data gets hacked without your knowledge! Other voice assistants were said, but they were never mentioned what could possibly be "hacked" by these ultrasound frequencies. A Windows PC with Cortana can even have private information compromised by this. >>Source

Five Years of Jail Time Imposed on This Hacker for Harassing the Director CIA and FBI

Justin Liverman, 23, is not your ordinary young adult. What makes Liverman different than most teens in their 20's is the fact that most people around that age aren't harassing the head of the FBI and CIA. Liverman used the information he obtained on the two (John Brennan and James R. Clapper Jr.) by social engineering officials and employees of their respected companies. In addition, Liverman had used their private information to harass them and to wreak "havoc" on them. With cynical intentions, Justin had purchased a phone message bombing service to spam the phones of the victims. When Liverman was finally arrested, according to the attorney prosecuting him, he had over 20,000 victims information of those in the law enforcement database. >>Source

Noice, just noticed the towers in the HF News banner:

Spoiler (Click to View)

Small details, I like it.

SIM-1729678 - September 11, 2017, 10:58 pm

Nice edition, was nice being interviewed :)

Fruitcake - September 11, 2017, 11:01 pm

Another amazing edition man!

Thanks for these

False King - September 11, 2017, 11:55 pm

Feels like this edition was huge. Though I did find something that isn't true.

Quote:There is no way Omni would remove the editing feature because everyone needs to use it;

Yeah, there is a huge chance he will. Hell, it's almost a certainty if people keep on going.

Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Quote:I don't think removing edit ability is the best idea.

I don't care how bad of an idea it is. Likely I'd allow for editing where you'd only be able to add to the post and not edit existing content. It's just too fucked up when members edit their threads to remove the bulk of their content and it's not just every now and then. It's frequent. It's very frequent. It's bullshit.

I have low tolerance for bullshit and obviously removing junk wasn't enough. You'll all lose edit ability one day. That's nearly a guarantee because we have too many stupid fucking asshole morons still on HF.

Lost my shit at the miscellaneous 'thread'. Thanks for including me and making another great issue. Great to see so much hard work put into this for the community.

Prophett - September 12, 2017, 1:23 am

Just finished reading. Keep up the good work!

Agreed. Even though I lack any semblance of gfx talent, it was still cool to look through the submissions.

We'll come up with something cool that will benefit HF greatly.

Open for ideas. Would like it to be connected to a HF event.
