What a horrible lesson he's teaching his son by not stopping him. If I was a fighter, I'd make sure my child knows to keep the fighting in the ring (or in self defense of course). It's like the guy wasn't even phased by what his son was doing. I'm sure everyone would understand and give props if he stopped flexing to tend to his child's bad behavior.

I hate the fact the father just kept posing and letting the child do what he was doing. It would of been ok-ish (still not right) if the father showed some discipline but none was shown at all.
