With the right dodges and smart plays you'll easily carry games with singed.

I feel like he's been underrated for soo long that people either see him as a dark horse or just a troll pick. He takes a lot of time to master, but you'll have a lot of fun while doing so. Also there's many types of builds you can do, bruiser singed, tank singed and support singed. You can't really grow tired of this champ.

What are your thoughts on singed?

ruDEADASSmyguy - September 24, 2017, 3:19 pm

For me I literally hate playing against a singed because it's so annoying when he has deathfire and also Rylai's and Liandry's like damn it just annoys me so much chasing him or even try killing him because it's make me tilt lol

CanDo - September 24, 2017, 3:21 pm

Hahaha nicely done. I do like singed but its pretty easy to get shut down if theres any communication between the mid and jungle :(Just kinda relays on your team being reactive if people start to chase you i guess.

NA Riven - September 24, 2017, 3:59 pm

I like your tag tho :)) Anyway Singed gives me cancer

I remember your op.gg of you in mid Diamond with a nice winrate. Do you typically proxy all game or tough it out in lane? A brief rundown of what you do with Singed would be great for us who want to pick up the champ.

Honestly it all depends on the enemy toplaner and jungler. If the opponent I am facing is a real bitch to lane against I'll just avoid laning at any cost.

If I'm facing kayle or teemo for example, I'll avoid those first rough levels. You easily take most opponents down if they overextend at your level 6 powerspike.

But the trick when it comes to playing a good Singed is knowing how much damage you can take. This is fundamental for playing a good singed. You need to know when your opponent will die before you do. If they're chasing you, good, if they're not, chase them.

The better you become at this champ, the more damage items you can build on him. There's less room for mistakes when building him with rylais/liandries/dft, but your poison will melt people. I would recommend people who are new to Singed to build tanky and once you're comfortable with the Singed mechanics I'd start experimenting with other builds.

Let me know if you have any other thoughts.

Anytime I see a Singed pick on the other team I already know I'm in for a terrible time. I've seen Singed players singlehandedly carry a team of scrubs. Underrated as hell.

Would it be possible for you to link your op.gg again? I'd rather examine your build paths over a random from mobafire.

I've been spamming Singed nonstop, and this champ really is fun. My main weakness in every game is I just get chunked out in lane and forced to back. I have no idea how, or when to proxy. A lot of the time they know I'm going to try and proxy level 1, so they wait in the brush top. I've been rushing Righteous into Rylais, and then full on tank. I have a lot of success in the late game.

Search him on EUW.OP.GG and you'll find him prob.

lwristis - September 26, 2017, 3:27 pm

he's a very TOXIC champion

Sure I'll link my op.gg.

Not too many Singed games in there right now, but it's the typical build that I tend to follow(ish).

IMRICH69 - September 27, 2017, 3:54 am

Great fucking play my man.

It's really awesome seeing someone handle a not so common champion, flawlessly. GJ!

r4z - September 28, 2017, 12:55 pm

I think saying Singed is underrated is not the case, seeing as he's been lurking between top 1-3rd spot winratio on toplane for several patches on most servers.

To shake, or not to shake

dexterity42 - September 30, 2017, 1:36 pm

WP Dude lol. My opinion is that he tilts me whenever I face him, however I win most of the time.
