Thread: PayPal Issue - Indians Answer please.

ANME - September 25, 2017, 2:50 am

Is any Indian here successfully using SBI Master Debit Card on PayPal for International transactions? I've added my sbi master debit card to my paypal and it's confirmed but paypal is declining the card while making international transaction. WHY?

Factor8™ - September 25, 2017, 3:25 am

You can only use your credit card to top up your PP balance.

Are you talking about a certain country or countries? The reason for that question is because I can use my Debit Card to top up my PP balance.

you can activate International use instantly on SBI debit card by sending the following SMS: SWON INTL XXXX where XXXX is the last four digits of your card to 09223966666.

That is what I exactly did via SMS. Right after that I received an SMS from them which reads as "Your request for INTL....is processed successfully. reference no.."

Does it take 24hrs to get activated or instantly? I tried right after that sms even many times but still PayPal declined my card. Fuck it.

I am not sure if you can use Debit card for international purchases, Infact my SBI debit card never worked, I use HDFC platinum and that workks effortlessly.

You can surely use a debit card of SBI. You just need to call SBI and tell them to enable international transactions.

I used SMS service for that and it didn't work. On what number should I call lol?

yaadang - September 28, 2017, 7:08 am

I doubt the Sms will do any good, try talking to the customer service.. However it's probably better to not have debit as disputes would be sorted more easier on credit cards

You can use any VISA / Mastercard in India with PayPal now but you have to change your payment billing currency from INR to USD during checkout ?

Mastro , RUPAY not work , else everything works fine , also your debit card must have INTERNATIONAL TRANSACTION POS enabled .

There's no Maestro/bancontact/mister cash thing for india?

It's usually not shown on the website

This and don't listen to anyone else. I have personally used axis and sbi debit card.

For SBI, I went to my branch, bank manager asked me an application and it was activated after 2-3 days. BTW, this was like 4 years ago. I don't know whether they have simplified this process or not.

For axis there is an option to enable international spend through net banking.

That's it, you don't have do anything other than that.

ANME - September 28, 2017, 10:21 pm

Ok so, I converted it to USD during the payment process via PayPal and still it declined the payment and the card.

Oh ya i got it. I only have two options. One is to convert using paypal which converts the currency into USD but the autoselected option is "convert with paypal" which doesn't change the currency into USD and on both options my card is being declined after I fill in the OTP verification code sent to my phone !!!!!!!

Nikola ?esla - September 28, 2017, 10:49 pm

I have used HDFC and ICICI debit card on paypal without any issue the best thing is call sbi customer support first and then call paypal.

I'd rather open another new account in the private bank like HDFC or Axis or icici

I don't wanna go through certain processes again and I have already activated INTL transaction via SMS and it didnt fucking work.

Well that's strange .. this is PayPal's new design previously it had same option during checkout but in different names . Basically the fact is NO DEBIT CARD allowed to be paid as INR via PayPal , you need to select USD during checkout , for CC it will work with both option either as INR or USD . Well if this didn't work then i am afraid i do not know and you have to contact bank and enable International usage and test . For me SBI Business Debit Visa works fine anywhere .

CC what?

And Maybe I have to change the currency from INR to USD somewhere in my PP account settings? That might work if such option is there?

I think PayPal only allows SBI credit cards for INTL transactions, doesn't it ?

ANME - October 1, 2017, 1:40 am

I tried using it on some site and received an sms from sbi saying that my card is domestic and upgrade it to international debit card. "

LoL

My card is Master global debit card. Do I need to upgrade it?

Okay.

And how do I deactivate the current card permanently? Do i just have to use the BLOCK card option or have to submit an application to the bank directly?

assunderer - October 2, 2017, 12:07 am

My mastercard works fine, I just used it 5 minutes back on paypal to make a purchase.

Master Debit Card?

What procedure you followed to make it work on PayPal?

ANME - October 17, 2017, 4:06 am

I finally solved it. Got my Global SBI Visa card and now I can successfully send and receive money on PayPal.

Yes exactly, you need the Global debit VISA/Master card for paypal transactions and International usage enabled.

Numinous - October 17, 2017, 4:15 am

You should add credit card rather than to use Debit card..

n4xiii - October 17, 2017, 4:28 am

Indian users can use Paypal to make transactions by adding funds via Bank to paypal or CC/ only .

You need to make Call to PP Support to active it for making transaction (by doing this you can only make transfers to others.)

Master Global Debit Card didn't work that's why I used VISA Global Debit Card and it did work.
