

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: How do I Choose Transparent Background with New Photoshop?

Effexion - September 25, 2017, 10:03 am

It's all changed. It may look better but no, it really isn't. I can't find how to do this anymore:

Aveling - September 25, 2017, 10:09 am

Are you running PhotoShop CreativeCloud(CC)? I'm still stuck at CS6 so I can't test it myself but are there not transparency options in the Background Color dropdown or when you click the Advanced Options toggle?

Oh, I think I found it, see https://www.youtube.com/watch?time_continue=24&v=5fCo3ls39dc

Effexion - September 25, 2017, 10:20 am

(Sep 25, 2017 10:09 AM)Aveling Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Are you running PhotoShop CreativeCloud(CC)? I'm still stuck at CS6 so I can't test it myself but are there not transparency options in the Background Color dropdown or when you click the Advanced Options toggle?

Oh, I think I found it, see https://www.youtube.com/watch?time_continue=24&v=5fCo3ls39dc

Hmm, it seems i am undeserving of transparent backgrounds lol:

Thanks for taking your time to find out though, man.

Saul Bass - September 25, 2017, 10:58 am

I got CC..

However, not many people work on a transparent art board. You can just click on the eye on the background layer to make it transparent. When you save via save for web (Legacy) you have an option to choose a transparent background.

Effexion - September 25, 2017, 11:01 am

(Sep 25, 2017 10:58 AM)Saul Bass Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I got CC..

However, not many people work on a transparent art board. You can just click on the eye on the background layer to make it transparent. When you save via save for web (Legacy) you have an option to choose a transparent background.

Sounds like a solid workaround. Thanks, man.