Thread: Make My Steam Art work Animated Somehow

Malevolent - September 26, 2017, 9:07 pm

I want a cool little animation of some sort added to my two Steam artworks.

(I want it to be seamless between the two long images, if you need the original two images PM me and I will give them to you to work with)

Some ideas:

Some light snow drifting across the images. (PREFERRED -- best would be if this could be combined with the bottom idea)

A slight glitching effect.

Add one of those orange circles to the backpack on the guy in the image.

Thanks A TON to anyone who can help me OR if you have any suggestions for my profile.

I am still hoping someone can do this for me...

I know a dude who can do this but im sure he would ask for money.

Doubt anyone will make it for free.

You would be surprised, I have had a lot of very good work done for free on here before.

If you can't find anyone willing to do it for free, and decide to pay, you can check out this list for reputable Steam profile designers.

Good luck! ?

Then you overpaid to be honest.

All you need is a quick image edit by someone.

Would probably cost $5-25 depending on the skill level.

No, that's what I mean.

Snow falling + the SHD watch glowing occasionally is like a $5 quick job.

What you have is probably $10-20 from a free lancer.

I sure as hell would get insulted for being paid $10-20 for hours of work.

And $5 is also an insult no matter what. You might find someone, but it will be a 13 year old kid with no idea about money, and that'll just help destroy the market

I pretty much agree with everything you said. Been watching this thread and the posts of the OP and it's just funny.

But I guess that this is how you stay rich:

Mommy and Daddy never helped me. So I helped myself.

I do know the value.

Why?

Because I have tons of logos/branding made for next to nothing with people with crazy skill, or people trying to build up a portfolio.

You might be able to find this from someone using a template or with no Steam experience, but almost all experienced Steam designers will ask for at least some compensation.

(Check /r/steamartworkprofiles to learn more)

Thanks for the quote. Hard work and street smarts pay off.

That being said, you're just being a dick to be honest. I'm not rich, I am just doing well in my own rights.

I never claimed I was rich. I made it clear I was comfortable.

Also, if you want to play the dick game, clearly you don't have much value as to time if you're looking into my post history. Why don't you bring up my first post from 2011? I bet that'll make you feel like a man. <3

Good investments, good business practice, and keeping margins low works out well.

If you continually pay $100 per graphic rather than finding people (which takes generally MUCH less than the time is worth in USD) who will do it for say $20 with very similar quality (or better/worse, more imaginative, etc.) and help them make money when they're just starting up WHILE building up their portfolio -- I'd say it's a win win. Please do excuse the run on sentence.

Hopefully you don't take any of this personally, as I sure do not.

If I need graphic done, I need the graphic done NOW.

To be honest, it more sounds like you're bullshitting, trying to act like more than you actually are. Quite common on the internet, but it gets you nowhere.

You want $5 graphics? Go on Fiverr and get template made stuff.
You want custom made quality graphics? Pay the price.

Freelancers got bills too.
I don't imagine you would pay a carpenter $5 to change some windows?

Hey let's agree to disagree?
Back on topic.

This is a REQUEST FREE GRAPHICS sub-forum.
Let's keep it that way.

I came here to try and get a free graphic.
If it works COOL, if not OH WELL.
