Thread: Remote Administration Tools: A Beginners Guide

Windows - October 3, 2017, 10:00 pm

Spoiler (Click to View) I couldn't really think of anything else to add on the top of my head, but I will continue to add more information once in a while.

Remote Admin Tools: A Beginners Guide

What are Remote Administration Tools?

Quote:A Remote Administration Tool (RAT for short) can be used for malicious purposes or legal purposes, some illegal purposes are controlling PC's, stealing victims data, deleting files. You can infect someone by sending them the stub you have created in your RAT.

How do they work?

Quote:The RAT is run on your computer, then you can create a stub file to infect clients. The stub will work in the background and will be hidden for the client. You can monitor the clients activity, manage files, install software, view passwords, turning on webcams and much more.

Do I have to portforward?

Quote:Yes! This is the most important part of setting up your rat. If you don't know how to port forward, I would suggest taking a look at this tutorial.

https://www.pcworld.com/article/244314/how_to_forward_ports_on_your_router.html

What is a Crypter?

Quote:Crypters are programs that are most of the time used to bypass antivirus detection of malware. Crypters are used to hide viruses, trojans, RATs, keyloggers into a new .exe file which antiviruses cannot detect.

Whats fully undetectable or undetectable?

Fully undetectable (FUD) means that your stub won't be detected by any antivirus.

Undetectable (UD) means that it will be detectable by a few antiviruses.

Runtime or Scantime?

Runtime: These crypters will make the stub remain undetected during the execution.

Scantime: These crypters will make the stub seem undetectable upon scanning, but when run in PC it will get detected by antivirus.

Which RAT should I use?

Free RATs to use:Quasar RAT
Babylon
NJRat

RATs to avoid:Darkcomet RAT
Luminosity Link
Blackshades RAT
Nanocore RAT

Which crypter should I avoid?

Crypters to avoid:Cheap Crypters (May not be FUD for a while)
Free Crypters (Will not be FUD)

Typical RAT Scenario
Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Legal and Illegal uses of a RAT

A RAT can be used for illegal and legal purposes. Some legal purposes are using it to monitor your businesses computers, recover passwords that are forgotten, transfer files and many more. Some people use RATs for illegal purposes to steal accounts, bank or credit card information, or even mine cryptocurrency on the clients computer.

I do not condone using RATs for illegal purposes, if you are using it for legal purposes feel free.

Android RATs

What are Android RATs?

Quote:Android RATs are developed to infect Android phones, some features in these rats are GPS locator, take pictures from the camera, SMS viewer, listen to microphone and much more.

How do they work?

Quote:The RAT is run on your computer, then you can create an .apk file to infect clients. The stub will work in the background and will be hidden for the client. You can monitor the clients activity, manage files, take pictures, view sms and much more.

Do I have to portforward?

Quote:Yes just like any RAT you need to portforward, here's a tutorial

https://www.pcworld.com/article/244314/how_to_forward_ports_on_your_router.html

Do I need a Crypter?

Quote:No you don't need a crypter the reason why is because, not a lot of people have antiviruses on their phones so there really would be no point.

Going to be adding more info in the future, hopefully this will stop some low quality posts in the RAT section.

This is a very nice tutorial mate.Great Thanks.

Can You please share any link from where we can learn portforwarding.

Another simple question is - If I send the exe to victim and if he install the stub then he will be infected automatically or not.I am little bit confused that if i need to setup port then if I need the victim's pc in my hand or not :)

Thank you. So you have to set up the port and when building your stub put your ipv4 address and external ip in it and then send the victim the .exe

Why to avoid using darkcomet? Just wondering.

Sure, it's not the most stable rat there is, but I'd say it's quite a decent one if you don't want to pay for one.

Which one is more stable Quasar or Babylon?

Also there is an option to transfer clients from one rat to another?

cephregada - October 4, 2017, 2:19 pm

Why don't you include a guide about mobile rats ? It's a pc inside our pockets, take a look at my thread

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5730648>

In my opinion we should concentrate more on mobile rats

I'd recommend you remove paid products from this thread. Legit or non legit, just free advertising for them. You should list free one's.

Needs way more information, and he should take my opinion into consideration, because Omni will never put a sticky in this section if it features paid products.

That's not a crypter man, and yes it is normal but since it's a remote administration tool you have to add an exception in your antivirus to not block it.

Thank you, I really appreciate that.

You shouldn't use a free crypter.. first reason is it will not be FUD and you would be better off just sending your unencrypted stub.

My advice is to buy a crypter, such as KazyCrypter it's pretty good and cheap.

Hey mate, I was in the ratting game a long time ago, I've heard that SmartScreen prevents RATs from working nowadays and crypters are ineffective against that. Is this true? Is there really no way to get around this?

It is sort of true, crypters cannot bypass SmartScreen.

I believe you can purchase a program or something to get it bypassed but not 100% sure.

Hi Everyone, So I have built my own RAT using Quasar, but currently its detectable. I want it to be FUD, I've purchased Flow Crypter but that doesn't seem to work (still waiting on support though)

I am not sure if it would be 100% FUD or not but I would like one that is FUD and could be emailed or maybe added into a doc or PDF file.

Any help would be appreciated, I am building this for legal use though within company, I want to see how many fall for it even after 100's of emails explaining them not to open emails from unknown senders.
