Thread: Dedicated server hosting for a small Wordpress / WooCommerce / Ecommerce Shop?

Rsynced - October 20, 2017, 8:34 am

Any suggestions? Lowest prices I found for a reputable hosting company have been around $80 to $100 a month. I basically just need all the bandwidth without shared cloud neighbors sucking up the juice. 2-5 gb storage should be fine. I have thought of using my own ISP's 30mb line to run a server but they are very unreliable and our internet cuts out randomly on a weekly basis. (the bastards even cap at 250gb up/down per month)

I would appreciate any suggestions...

TIA ?

Who is reputed company? if you buy from a Domain or VPS specialist Provider, the pricing might be high. Do you need Cpanel/WHM included?

Thanks for the replies guys. I found a company that offers dedicated servers starting at $60 a month and semi-dedicated servers for $15 per month. I am really looking at semi-dedicated now since my website is new and does not get much traffic. Right now I am using cloud shared hosting and getting around 2-3 sec average load time according to pingdom.com

The company I found: <https://www.resellerspanel.com/>

Does anyone have any opinions?

OVH, Kimsufi, So You Start, etc.

I think unmetered shared would work fine though tbh

Do you need dedicated? You could grab SYS and OVH have been mentioned and are both great. You could grab a VM from DigitalOcean or AWS for cheap also.

Ok, thanks again. I have looked into DigitalOcean.

Just not sure where to start as far as a control panel goes. Right now I am using hepsia cp and I love it.

I'm good right now. Probably just going to upgrade to semi-dedicated using a well known data center.
