

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: [\[Official Group\] Eclipse Recruitment Thread \[#2\]](#)

Grey - October 27, 2017, 1:23 am

Eclipse Recruitment Thread

Information Eclipse is a group based around debating topics that fall within the Science, Religion, Philosophy, and Politics category, as well as generally helping other members around Hack Forums. We do not recruit based on personal politics, rather how you're able to argue your points. You'll also see members of Eclipse creating guides and tutorials in various other sections as our way of contributing to Hack Forums.

Basic Requirements Be active on Hack Forums

Be respectful to other members

100 posts minimum

No open scam reports

Application Instead of filling out a normal application, we ask that you give us your opinion on the death penalty in a 150-250 word article. The position you take on the issue has nothing to do with our selection process and who we decide to invite.

Code Age:

Profile UID:

Article:

Rules

1. Plagiarism will get you blacklisted
2. Trolling will get you blacklisted
3. This isn't a debate thread. If you don't like someone's opinions, take it up in PMs or in the SRPP section

There is no set amount of members that we're going to be recruiting, but we're hoping to add at least five new members from this recruitment! I wish you all the best of luck and look forward to reading through all of your applications!

SIM-2273342 - October 27, 2017, 7:11 am

We look forward to responses. Don't let the word count discourage you!

Demize - October 27, 2017, 2:05 pm

Age: 22

Profile UID: <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=1257324>

Article: I believe the death penalty is a good thing, why you may ask? because it gives family closure. If someone murdered your family member you would be devastated. You would have hatred towards them and the situation, and although they could be put in jail for the rest of their life it doesn't give you the same closure as putting them to death does. I have always believed in the harambe's code, the whole "an eye for an eye" because i don't believe life in prison is enough to deter people away from committing crimes. Putting someone to death for being convicted of murder would bring a lot more closure then having to be constantly reminded that someone who took the life of a loved one from you is still alive and breathing. Also the death penalty isn't usually used for most of the run of the mill murders its used in the more heinous ones. I believe it promotes a more higher standard that murder is not something to be taken lightly.

Biggy - October 27, 2017, 2:08 pm

Eclipse seems like a great group to be in, from what I've seen all the members are high quality and the tutorials they've been putting out around the forum have been great!

Best of luck with everything boys.

Unkn0wnUs3r - October 27, 2017, 3:54 pm

Age: 20

Profile UID: <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=2990242>

Article: I'm from the UK so have had an upbringing of no/anti death penalty. Despite this I do agree with it but only via Lethal Injection. Electrocution, firing squad, hanging, gas chamber etc I don't agree with. Makes a difficult situation a little bit morbid and more violent than it needs to be, in my opinion. Death penalty is a good option as apposed to life in prison because it is costly to keep such offenders in prison. Also, an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. I'm not sure about how "live in prison" works in the US but in the UK "life in prison" is usually 20 years. It's not uncommon to hear of a murderer doing 20 years in prison and given a new identity upon returning to the normal world. That's not life in prison in my books. In my eyes, people that are committing crimes that warrant the death penalty are not likely to be deterred from doing those crimes with the possibility of prison time. They probably will be with the possibility of the death penalty. I wouldn't be upset to see our government introduce it in the UK.

Neal Caffrey - October 28, 2017, 12:07 am

Age: 31

Profile UID: <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=944024>

Article:

Hello Eclipse Careers team,

Firstly, thank you so much for taking the time to create such a high-quality group. I understand that you're all very busy individuals, so any time that you've taken out of your day to create and post your recruitment thread is much appreciated.

Personally, I think the death sentence is a meme. I think some countries still need the death penalty because there are simply too many people in the world. We have a population of 6+ billion people, approaching 7 billion now. If we do not do something to drastically curve the population growth, we will run out of resources and all eventually perish. That being said, the only logical assumption to make is to issue out the death penalty for more minor crimes. This would include petty crime such as theft of goods, public urination and drug consumption. This would greatly curve population growth, and thus create a need for the death penalty to address the systematic oppression of mankind by the patriarchal monarchy.

Once again, thank you so much for taking time out of your busy day to create this recruitment. If you have any questions at all, please do not hesitate to reply below, or PM me directly to have a meaningful and insightful discussion. Best of luck in your endeavours, and I look forward to wearing the #Eclipse userbar.

Kind regards,
Neal

Deany - October 28, 2017, 1:18 am

(Oct 28, 2017 12:07 AM)Neal Caffrey Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Age: 31

Profile UID: <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=944024>

Article:

Hello Eclipse Careers team,

Firstly, thank you so much for taking the time to create such a high-quality group. I understand that you're all very busy individuals, so any time that you've taken out of your day to create and post your recruitment thread is much appreciated.

Personally, I think the death sentence is a meme. I think some countries still need the death penalty because there are simply too many people in the world. We have a population of 6+ billion people, approaching 7 billion now. If we do not do something to drastically curve the population growth, we will run out of resources and all eventually perish. That being said, the only logical assumption to make is to issue out the death penalty for more minor crimes. This would include petty crime such as theft of goods, public urination and drug consumption. This would greatly curve population growth, and thus create a need for the death penalty to address the systematic oppression of mankind by the patriarchal monarchy.

Once again, thank you so much for taking time out of your busy day to create this recruitment. If you have any questions at all, please do not hesitate to reply below, or PM me directly to have a meaningful and insightful discussion. Best of luck in your endeavours, and I look forward to wearing the #Eclipse userbar.

Kind regards,

Neal

WTF accept this man already

DOG - October 30, 2017, 12:40 pm

We still looking for more members! Apply while you can!

Riyu - October 30, 2017, 12:49 pm

Age: 14

Profile UID: <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=3129680>

Article: I believe the Death Penalty should be a thing, at least in America. If someone is 100% guilty of a crime and there is no uncertainty then they should be put to death. I'd only apply this to murders and other extremely horrific crimes though. No reason the family of the deceased should have to worry about the murderer having the chance to walk free again. I don't see the point of wasting tax payer money on keeping those scum alive when a lot of them do nothing but sit in a cell playing with their dicks. I'm sure if people knew they would get the death penalty for their crimes, they might second guess what they're about to do. It's sad that a lot of places don't even have the death penalty anymore, like what's the point of keeping mass-murders alive? Prisons in the US are starting to become over-populated which means it's a perfect opportunity to kill those who killed.

Orchid - October 30, 2017, 1:59 pm

Good luck to all the applicants!

Lukas - October 30, 2017, 5:22 pm

I can't figure out how to debate. Any tips to be offered for acceptance?

Mr.Cat - October 30, 2017, 6:02 pm

Death penalty is a joke not only because we humans are making a lot of mistakes but because we should be aiming to change people, not kill them regardless of what they did. Nobody is born a "monster". We become like that. If killing is the best solution then i guess hitler was right all along. Its always easier to just kill the "bad" guy. But that doesn't solve the problem, others will take his place and it will never end because you never tried to figure out what the problem was..... the anime psycho pass is a good example.

An eye for an eye will make the world go blind.

Percyi - October 30, 2017, 6:25 pm

Age: 16

Profile UID: 2318463

Article:

The death penalty, in my opinion, is not something that should exist at all. Yes, humans make mistakes. Yes, there are serial killers. However, isn't it enough that they spend their whole life in jail? Who can they harm in jail? The death penalty is useless. If a serial killer is put away and can no longer harm someone without the need to end their life, then why end their life? A lifetime in prison will certainly give them time to think about what they did. There have been many cases of the death penalty being applied over time, but in my opinion, it is useless and a waste of money. We recently read a book in class called In Cold Blood by Truman Capote, which was about 2 murderers with very contrasting personalities and their journey after killing an upper class family in a rural town. In the end, they are hanged as a result of their conviction. To reiterate my previous statements, was this necessary? No, it certainly was not. Their lives didn't have to end at that age. They could have made the best of their lives and learn from their mistakes in prison, where they can get the help they need.

r0fleZ - October 31, 2017, 6:47 am

Age: 31

Profile UID: <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=2310772>

Article: I reckon the Capital punishment is a good thing to use for all them dirty pedo's, rapists and fucked up murderers. If it got well known everywhere that these people would get the Death Penalty, the crimes would drop a lot. Ive noticed from documentaries people love living in prisons, so they don't care about committing crimes then going straight back in to prison, If the other option was a Death Penalty, then nothing might happen.

Hamware - October 31, 2017, 9:45 am

Age: 19

Profile UID: 1135355

Article: I support the death penalty to an extent, as I do believe people deserve second chances, as we are humans and tend to make a lot of mistakes in our lives. However, if rehabilitation has been given to the person, but continues to make these horrific acts, then honestly I believe that the death penalty is acceptable. The earth is over-populated, and has no room for such people who would only cause grief to everyone else. Imprisoning someone for a lifetime, might change them as a person, but what then? They will spend the rest of their lives in a cell, in my opinion I would want to save them the time and end it. To conclude, I do support the death penalty as I believe it can serve as a deterrent to people who would think to commit such crimes.

SIM-2273342 - October 31, 2017, 3:12 pm

(Oct 30, 2017 06:02 PM)Mr.Cat Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) An eye for an eye will make the world go blind. That is an over-used and over-simplified statement.

Mr.Cat - October 31, 2017, 4:41 pm

(Oct 31, 2017 03:12 PM)Romania Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That is an over-used and over-simplified statement.

Same goes for "an eye for an eye"

over-used and over-simplifield

How will one react if someone take his "leg" while the person who did it doesn't have any? How can you accurately measure value when we are the ones who create value?

SIM-1729678 - October 31, 2017, 4:42 pm

Eclipse seems like a very nice group. Best of luck with your recruitment guys!

Summer Smith - October 31, 2017, 5:16 pm

Age: 20

Profile UID: 1086891

Article:

I believe we should abolish the death penalty system. Someone be convicted of a crime they didn't commit because of the error with the forensic result because of contamination or witness am lying/ withholding information about the actually happened and an innocent person is executed. Also, there have been a lot of studies on the death penalty which have concluded that the execution is way more expensive than sentencing to jail someone to jail for life. Executing someone for crimes is morally and socially wrong. Just like Gandhi said, "eye for an eye makes the whole world blind". However, I do not support criminals and crime they might have committed. I think those people who are convicted should be forced to do labor jobs such as farming, cleaning the street, or etc jobs nobody wants to do. So they are not just still in the cell thinking why should have not committed the crime.

Neal Caffrey - October 31, 2017, 5:19 pm

Hi team,

I was wondering if I could get an update on my application?

Kind regards,
Neal

Vince - November 1, 2017, 10:22 am

Ah jesus a Void wanna be without Hex and all the other dudes who made Void a great group. GL, just don't see this lasting long at all.

Mr.Cat - November 1, 2017, 10:49 am

(Nov 1, 2017 10:22 AM)Vince? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ah jesus a Void wanna be without Hex and all the other dudes who made Void a great group. GL, just don't see this lasting long at all. Its not like void lasted either.

Vince - November 1, 2017, 10:49 am

(Nov 1, 2017 10:49 AM)Mr.Cat Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Its not like void lasted either. A lot longer then most groups did. Regardless, not hijacking the thread.

SIM-2273342 - November 1, 2017, 8:41 pm

(Nov 1, 2017 10:49 AM)Vince? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) A lot longer then most groups did. Regardless, not hijacking the thread.

We appreciate feedback with actual insight. We aren't trying to mimic any other group, nor are going to invite someone because of their past presence/participation. We are trying to remove all bias and invite members that will impact the group and forum in a beneficial way.

Vince - November 2, 2017, 10:54 am

(Nov 1, 2017 08:41 PM)Romania Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) We appreciate feedback with actual insight. We aren't trying to mimic any other group, nor are going to invite someone because of their past presence/participation. We are trying to remove all bias and invite members that will impact the group and forum in a beneficial way.

Well if you guys are ever down to debate, I am as well. I don't delve into the SSRP section anymore, dumpster fire of trolls and idiotic threads.

SIM-2273342 - November 2, 2017, 3:56 pm

(Nov 2, 2017 10:54 AM)Vince? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well if you guys are ever down to debate, I am as well. I don't delve into the SSRP section anymore, dumpster fire of trolls and idiotic threads.

Unfortunately the forum has quite a bit of trolls that ruin it for the rest. We are hoping that won't be too much of a problem in regards to the group.

Grey - November 3, 2017, 1:31 am

We have added the first two new recruits from this thread and hope to add more from applications to come!

Almonds - November 3, 2017, 11:07 am

Age: 20

Profile UID: 3680574

Article:

Personally, the death penalty is ok, but at the same time it isn't. If you've done any type of research, you would be surprised at the amount of people that have been on death row who turned out to be innocent after spending half their life in a 5x8 cell.. Now the issue is that- The justice system has flaws, meaning that people who are innocent can be imprisoned for things they did not do. I can't tell you how many times I've heard innocent people say "Oh well I didn't do it- so the truth will prevail" Those people don't realize the accusations against them until they're sentenced to the death penalty for something they didn't do. Ontop of that, you have (x) amount of appeals, and then one final appeal before you are killed by lethal injection. In many cases, the final appeal will lead to the persons innocence after all this time because the whole case is reviewed. Most of the time, if it is accepted, they either get sentenced to life in prison, or are set free. This doesn't quite happen without the help of outside groups, and lawyers from the innocence project. (hella kudos to them)

Now the question is, do you think the death penalty should be allowed?

No by the means of potential innocent people being killed by lethal injection. On another note, our judicial consequences are supposed to rehabilitate us back into society, and that hasn't worked from the get-go and the answer isn't the death penalty. We need some type of 'reward' system other than freedom to keep people out of jail. In conclusion, however- in some rare cases of domestic terrorism, or hate crimes I would be in favor of the death penalty.

J?cob - November 3, 2017, 10:48 pm

Age:18

Profile UID:3100104

Article: The death penalty is a very mixed area and while I am mostly for it, there are some reasons why I disagree. Prison is looked at as a term of rehabilitation and we have seen an overall decrease on recidivism rates over the past few decades. The goal shouldn't be to lock these people up because the of a crime they committed but more to educate, develop, and rehabilitate prisoners before they are integrated back into society. I think that if we hand death penalties or life sentences for that matter to people who made mistakes but have the ability to look back and feel deep remorse for their crime(s), that the justice system gave up on them and the prison system won't help them get better. I can sit here and defend prisoners on death row, but at the same time I can talk about how I can see how it can be used as a tool for criminal justice. The death penalty does serve some benefits. The biggest role I think the death penalty is used as a deterrent. While it's argued that people might not commit a crime because of the penalty, I don't think that same thought process is a hundred percent present in an offender than a healthy citizen. What I think the death penalty does provide is a tool for prosecutors to use to negotiate pleas. You can look at plea deals how you'd like though.

I could keep typing but I think I ran a few words over.

Slavoj Žižek - November 3, 2017, 10:54 pm

If you guys are willing to discuss radical freedom I am down. I will simply prove myself via a discussion regarding the topic.

Best regards

DOG - November 7, 2017, 11:01 pm

Recruitment is still open! We are looking for more members!

Berry White - November 7, 2017, 11:29 pm

Age: 19

Profile UID: Find my damn Profile UID by yourself motherfucker, jk, here 3715439.

Article: Well death penalty, it is a thing of perspective. You see, if somebody is having death penalty (who is guilty of course for let's say killing a man) I guess victim's family will be happy BUT what about killer's family? What do you think how are they feeling?

Now somebody would say, "screw them, he killed a man, he deserves that"!! Okay.

But what if your, let's say brother, killed a man? How would you and your family react? How desperate and broken? Ask yourself that question.

So I say death penalty should not be allowed. Never. However long, long, loooong jail time is the best option right now. It's much better punishment than death - it's easy to die, but hard to live, especially in a jail.

Ghost.13 - November 7, 2017, 11:34 pm

Age: 23

Profile UID: <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=826234>

Article:

With the world's current state, I believe death penalty should be an option, globally, under certain circumstances, for several reasons.

First of, let's not deny it, some people just doesn't deserve to live anymore. Better to keep them six feet underground than in a cell. Prisons are for people that still has a chance to be introduced back to society. This could save governments a lot of money and effort.

Next would be the population problem. Again, let's not deny this one too, there's just too much people in the world. Depopulation by death penalty under certain restrictions would be one way to ease the problem a bit. Human beings and our activities are technically the main reason why there's we have global warming.

Lastly, on a personal level, death penalty is probably the only "true justice" on a case-to-case basis. Ending one's life as an answer for another one's loss of life roots back to the medieval ages, and was considered the only form of justice.

Airness - November 7, 2017, 11:59 pm

Age: 14

Profile UID: <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=3085016>

Article: As a person raised in a Christian home, I do not think the death penalty should be imposed. Reason for my opinion is because all life is important, to me, to my family, and to God. God gave us humans free will to do whatever we please. Just because someone goes ahead and decides to kill someone doesn't mean you should go ahead and kill the killer. In the second paragraph of the first article of the Declaration Of Independence, it contains a statement, "Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of happiness". If a person has happiness while killing someone, then that is their choice. I don't care what type of authority you have, taking a life of someone does not make it right. Also, no sin is greater than the other. Anybody can be forgiven and accepted to become an angel when it is their time. 2 wrongs don't make a right :)

Thank you for taking the time to read my article.

Orchid - November 8, 2017, 7:51 am

Just dropping this here, how do some people think the death penalty is bad? Can someone explain to me?

I will share my thoughts after.

Ghost.13 - November 8, 2017, 8:10 am

(Nov 8, 2017 08:51 AM)Orchid Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Just dropping this here, how do some people think the death penalty is bad? Can someone explain to me?

I will share my thoughts after. Pretty sure it has something to do with morality, religion, and culture.

Orchid - November 8, 2017, 8:13 am

(Nov 8, 2017 09:10 AM)Ghost.13 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Pretty sure it has something to do with morality, religion, and culture.

Yea but if someone is guilty why pay for them to live. Such bullshit.

we probably shouldn't argue here ill make a thread in srpp

Airness - November 8, 2017, 8:57 am

(Nov 8, 2017 09:13 AM)Orchid Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yea but if someone is guilty why pay for them to live. Such bullshit.

we probably shouldn't argue here ill make a thread in srpp

you have a good point, why should someone live if they have done such horrific things.

Simple, life is important no matter what. If you don't believe that then, eh it's your opinion so i support you on it.

Berry White - November 8, 2017, 9:52 am

First of all i dont believe in any religion, i think its created for manipulating people, but that is for other topic.

His Airness Wrote: Simple, life is important no matter what To who ? Certainly not to people who want him dead because he killed a man.

But the thing here is a lot of people want that because of hate.

Orchid Wrote: Just dropping this here, how do some people think the death penalty is bad? Can someone explain to me? First man, if some of your family needs to die, how desperate would you be, and your family? And second, it is easy for guilty man to die, let them live in a jail for a long time, or forever. She will probably want to kill themselves too.

Slavoj Žižek - November 9, 2017, 4:30 am

(Nov 8, 2017 09:57 AM) His Airness Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) you have a good point, why should someone live if they have done such horrific things.

Simple, life is important no matter what. If you don't believe that then, eh it's your opinion so I support you on it.

And? If life is important, the individual being executed is more than free to struggle with all his might for it. If he succeeds, great, if not, then too bad, the executioner is radically free to execute his rights and duty to perform the execution.

444 - November 9, 2017, 2:19 pm

Age: 22

Profile UID: 1438414

Article: Good morning/afternoon/evening Eclipse, my name is Economical CEO and Co-Founder of a Vape Company in Niagara Falls, Ontario. My opinion on death penalty is fairly simple, seems reasonable knowing that I'm going to die anyway so might as well kill me instead of keep me in jail for 15 years that I would want to be dead anyway. After 15 years in prison, life outside will not feel the same and I would want to go back to my prison life due to comfort of my inmates and how I lived/was treated within those 5475 days in prison. Family and friends won't look at me the same, they'll treat me like a prisoner for the rest of my life. Might as well kill me now and recycle my soul for a better human user there. Personally, I think the people involved with the countless death penalties are already living in hell because they'll realize their life is worthless after witnessing countless of deaths from their moral selves. Conclusion- Depends on how people look at it really.