Thread: HF Theme UI Problems and Fixes

Omniscient - November 1, 2017, 6:49 am

Starting a separate thread from the Broken thread just to highlight and discuss the changes I know that have to be done and to ease members minds about how HF currently looks.

I'd like to state that I already have in-mind what I want HF to look like and in its current form I am not pleased. However, it is functional for right now and I know a full day of theme work will fix most of the issues.

Here is my official list of things I will alter.

10. Move the postbit date above the author bit
11. Figure out what to do with postbit classic. (I may decide to remove it completely if I'm not happy just altering it)
16. Redo edits to Private Message page so that the hovers highlighted the boxes and streamlined the page
17. Redo the forumdisplay hover highlights.
19. Away status is messed up on profile page
20. Fix the warning message colors
21. Reputation page opens the search box after you give rep.
22. Fix position of sales tags in search results.

And I will continue to update this thread as I think of new things to add and to marked items fixed.

Thank you.

P.S. Now you can begin all your criticisms and be a pain in my ass.

Ninja™ - November 1, 2017, 6:53 am

Just wanna mention that when you copy a thread title in pm it is copied in white rather than black , which makes it invisible but after sending the pm it appears to be black.
It didn't happened earlier.

Makaveli The Don - November 1, 2017, 6:54 am

Good thing everything is compiled in one place. Should stop people from asking the same thing over and over.

And yes, he is planning on installing an avatar gallery for non-upgraded members (so they wouldn't be custom).

Michael - November 1, 2017, 7:20 am

Not sure if this is already mentioned, but is it possible that every time you give someone reputation, it auto refreshes?

This used to be the case before, but now you manually have to refresh it.

I'd like to see this as well, though I think this is more of a feature suggestion then a theme suggestion.

When quoting a post it might be a good idea to change the color of the quote button of the post that is currently quoted so you can see which posts are in your multi quote.

Also when you are quoting someone currently it'll look like this in the quick reply text box.

The actual text you have to click on is white and unreadable. Maybe change that (or the background of the box) to a more suitable color.

This might be what you meant at #5 but I thought I'd mention it either way to be sure.

Omniscient - November 1, 2017, 7:28 am

Quote:2. Sort by Reputation option on memberlist page.

That's a feature/function and in the other thread it's listed. So is your open/close.

This thread is about the theme and not function. I created this thread to separate the two topics so don't be deft and try to discuss them here.

Quote:You should just close the thread after you post it to prevent cancers.

It would just increase the amount of new threads complaining.

Quote:Kindly Bring back predefined avatars function for regular members,Why can't regular members have avatars? All forums have that,Don't you think it's little biased Kindly read the other thread.

And you're probably a fucking multi too.

Quote:Not sure if this is already mentioned, but is it possible that every time you give someone reputation, it auto refreshes?

That's a function and not a theme issues. I also noticed that and it's annoying how MyBB downgraded some of its nice features. Unsure if I'll bother fixing their stupidity. Certainly very low priority.

Haha. Question, not sure if I missed somewhere but wanted to say it anyway just in case.

Will you add "UserCP" option/url/link near the links of Your Threads, Your Posts etc?

Because, the only way to access as far as I know, was via the hamburger navigation. If I press on my username it links me to my profile so apologies If i am missing anything. This is not priority at all but just asking! Have a nice day buddy!

SawCyanic - November 1, 2017, 7:59 am

If you click on private messages on the top right you'll get into the userCP as well. It's a pretty easy solution.

ra1d - November 1, 2017, 9:48 am

Let the ass pain begin.

Omni I hope you a going to bring some other sort of navigation, right now it's annoying to browse HF, all the sections are cluttered and are not very convenient to browse at all.

Also for the love of god please retain classic mode <3 I hate the standard view.

Just my 2 cents.

Other than the above, it seems gucci.

6. Removal of thread views on forumdisplay and index.

Will be disappointed to see these go I'll be honest, I really enjoyed having them visible and able to see what sort of threads are gaining traction and users are looking at the most.

It was annoying to have to visit the userCP everytime, I personally quite enjoy the thread views displaying, Not only can you see your own threads but you can judge how your competitions threads are preforming in terms of their views, helps me adjust my titles and stuff to hopefully convert to better views in the marketplace.

Besides that everything looks fantastic, really great work Omni and I'm glad things are going where they need to.

Wirt - November 1, 2017, 9:56 am

Don't think is a big deal and I'm not sure if it has something to do with the theme (?) or not but it used to be that when we left rep on someone, their rep page would automatically refresh, but now you have to refresh it on your own and I'm lazy as fuck

This isn't a bug, but pasting anything now automatically adds mycode to your post. Is there an easy way to force plain text from clipboard? If there isn't it's no big deal, not worth spending time on.

Edit: Never mind just ignore this. It was specific to only select sites.

Noticed the hamburger menu is gone for PC users. Makes no real difference but seems like a good change.

There is a lack of navigation options for PC users atm now, unfortunately.

I've been visiting /extras.php and other pages via the URL as there are no quicklinks in the menubar. I'm sure this will change soon. I didn't like using the Hamburger menu on the PC, but atleast it had the navigation potential, so I could actually have all of the links there.

I love the new menu, it looks amazing. However it does look a little crowded up there, and the stars on threads and other images are overlaying the dropdown menu which is causing a few glitches from my end anyway.

Maybe a linebreak under the logo (and possibly above) would make it a little less crowded. That is just my feedback.

Shocking that no one has mentioned one important feature in the Menu Nav.

Quote:On mobile I get zoomed onto the top right when I open a new page again

It's definitely much harder to test in both a mobile and desktop version at the same time and fix these issues. But the goal is to make this as mobile friendly as possible.

What do you mean about the zooming? How was it before because I am forced to add the viewport meta tag but this time instead of removing it after complaints I'm going to try and fix how HF works. We need to be mobile friendly really badly.

Quote:But I'd rather have it zoomed out.

The full size zoom is going to stay but I'm altering the sites display now and hoping to make it easier to view and use. You will however need to get used to the new HF.

It's a good idea, but I doubt Omni would be interested in setting up something like that. Especially not while he's busy with more important things right now, such as fixing existing issues before adding additional features with their own issues.

Maybe a member of the community (like you), could create/run an unofficial radio. I'd listen to it!

That's a frivolous feature. Anyone using their device and wanting to listen to their own music can do it. I don't need to run a radio station or have music playing on the site. Rather pointless.

True, music/radio can be added with the simple plugin or script. Doesn't makes sense to use it on hackforums when none of other big sites like reddit/twitter use that feature.

The buddy list close link is a little wonky:

<https://ctrlv.cz/shots/2017/11/06/EDCU.png>

the close link trails off to the left of the page, which is a little improper. It doesn't affect functionality, but it doesn't look polished.

To fix this issue, change

text-indent: -9999px;

to font-size: 0;

This will remove the "close" text that you're trying to hide, but will make the link have its normal borders:

<https://ctrlv.cz/shots/2017/11/06/L29k.png>

There is also a white line above the gradient, which doesn't go well with the rest of the gradients on the forum. You can solve that issue by removing "border-collapse" from tborder, only for the buddy list (I know it is there for a reason for the rest of the forum's css, but for the buddy list it just adds that odd white line). Adding a new class to the buddylist with border-collapse: unset will fix that, or inline css if you're using any and don't care.

All combined, it will look like this:

<https://ctrlv.cz/shots/2017/11/06/d60p.png>

much more polished.

Another theme bug (I'm pretty sure you are aware of it) is that the background header image only spans the width of the postbit, when the background of the update with the hamburger menu expanded and filled the areas in with the theme. It works' but its a single dropdown and it affects the rest of the page. It can be fixed on mobile from that design by making its position absolute, and then giving the rest of the page wrapper a top padding of the height of the menu.

It doesn't currently stretch all the way across though, and if it's to be the width it is now on mobile then it will need to cover the banner slightly, or something will need to be to its right.

As for all these mobile inconsistencies. I'm not sure what the answer is other than I continue to work on it. Mobile friendliness is so important to the future of this site but I'm leery that it might be impossible given our nature.

We have so many elements of design on the site that condensing them and finding a realistic solution is going to be extremely difficult.

On the simulations I am running I'm not seeing any problems with the header menu.

Also, the "auto zoom" that some of you are complaining about is the viewport meta tag.

<https://css-tricks.com/snippets/html/responsive-meta-tag/>

Viewport tag tells the browser how to behave. While I know some of you aren't used to how it is now and consider it annoying, you must realize that it's important we make HF mobile friendly. It is going to take some time.

The APIv2 is just waiting to be installed and then we should have some great functioning apps for mobile usage. Until then we have to work through this.

What if you would fucking read your member's posts and suggestion? As to quote your main post, "P.S. Now you can begin all your criticisms and be a pain in my ass." Oxid was doing that perfectly fine, even without being a pain in most people's ass (yours must be sensitive from the amount of strap-ons that your mother gave you). In fact, it was not even criticism, it was a simple suggestion which would probably make the site look much better than it does in it's current state.

Oh also, let me hand you a lil' something to help you with your amazing HTML skills (please stop pasting navigation bar code from sites like cssmenuaker, we know you do clearly from the name of the CSS classes and the code resemblances). Maybe you can take a fucking course in HTML and learn how to code your shit properly?

<https://www.codecademy.com/pro/intensive/build-websites-from-scratch>

Will get banned or closed for this most likely, which will just further my point of your inability to comprehend basic suggestions and criticism, which you were completely radically freely to ignore by the way, but you did not do, thus denouncing your freedom as a human being, go learn from the Stoics or something, they might teach you something about your tendency to throw hissy fits.

Nah. Prefer to grant you an award for the proper flaming. Nice job. :)

And I have a huge weakness in my webmaster skills. It's javascript and I've mentioned it a few times over the years. I struggle a bit with it and barely manage to get by. Never thought JS would go as far as it did and now I'm years behind everyone else that uses it. Personally I'm not a fan of JS coded sites and all that bullshit it offers but now it's the norm unfortunately.

Quote:which will just further my point of your inability to comprehend basic suggestions and criticism

Having me fix bugs is different than telling me to change the design. I am not interested in anyone's opinion about the design. Elements that are difficult to see or maybe use with mobile I will work on.

Oh, btw, you don't see how much Oxid is a pain in my ass daily but that's fine. I'll unban him now. I don't want to upset you further.

And yes, admittedly I have a personality flaw where I don't accept criticism well.

I'm not too fond of the full width when viewing the forum on a computer. While it is tolerable in terms of forum display, on custom pages such as myawards.php or forumrules.php it makes the page's content too bulky and spread all over my screen. Some minimum margin on the left and right would be favorable to begin with.

I've always used my mobile on hf, it's just a little more difficult now because the navigational tools and page as a whole has changed. With that said, I don't understand how it isn't tolerable since the whole forum has changed for the better, lmao.

FiftyTwo - November 8, 2017, 3:30 am

As a mobile user, I'd say that if you are finding it hard to make the menu more mobile-friendly, I'd say remove it for mobiles altogether.

It's just that the zoom-in when you visit a new page is frustrating and the fact that the menu doesn't go across to the end of the page makes it look very odd. Also, picking an option from the menu is time consuming because it extends downwards.

I hope there's a fix though, because the menu on desktop looks awesome.

Alternatively, you could remove it for mobile until you find a way to fix the issues with menu.

Wires - November 8, 2017, 4:32 am

Menu doesn't correctly display for me on iPhone neither. How about allowing users to set their own width on the theme and storing that via cookies?

Bezo - November 8, 2017, 5:25 am

Weird issue on mobile.

Using s7, when I am on portrait mode it's the regular issue of it not sizing properly.

When I am on landscape, it auto opens the menu so I have to either really far down or double click 'menu' to close it.

Wouldn't it just be easier to add a separate theme for mobile users? You're going through all this trouble of making the desktop theme responsive, and its causing some issues.

It's easy enough to check users browsers and then set the theme. Would be easier if you wanted to add something later on that you only want on the desktop site.

I agree with Mr. 32 awards above me, lots of these people don't even know what they want. Upgrades are inevitable. You'll have to go to 2.x (or to another software completely) eventually, depending on what you're going to want to do. No matter what you chose, the theme can be made to look mostly like the old one, so that's not really an issue.

These sorts of things happen, I recommend just fixing all of the small issues where there is only one way to fix them, then move on to the more fancy things. The things you don't know what to do about... hold them up to a vote, maybe. Or just wing it and do what you want. You're doing fine.

I kept us on 1.6x for 7 years and everyone wanted new features and updates. So I take the giant leap and begin serious work to improve and upgrade the site. Honestly, it's not been worth it.

This is a disaster.

A majority of the people here are probably underage and don't know what it's like to experience change.

I'm sure you've been in a similar situation before where something disagreed with you doing "x.x", but look where the site ended up? Successful as fuck.

Ignore all the stupid mother fuckers and do your thing, you know what's best, or else you wouldn't be where you are today.

Most of these kids are scared of change and want what they're used to. Change is NECESSARY, upgrades are necessary, that's how you keep up with the times.

Is it I or the search function does not work? Haven't read all the bugs threads so I wouldn't know ?

Also, people will get used to the theme in a few months. It's not like they will leave just because of that.

Just use google if you're searching for something. That's what I've been doing.

I know you did not just say that.

But when I have the extra time I'm going to figure out a proper setup.
I agree it isn't as helpful as the other one would've been if properly integrated for mobile, but it is a decent temporary solution until you can figure out a way to set it up.
Also, for the people complaining about tabs, just ignore them because like other users said, they'll adapt and will forget about it. We should be moving forwards, not backwards.

I was looking for my old gambling group thread. Search results did not yield it. Put it in google and it was the first link.

It was older than my past 5 pages of threads so I couldn't see it in my view threads.

I'm going to revert the theme to Modern Blue. This theme has failed to win over the member base.

Closing this thread and starting a new one.
