

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: High quality custom apparel - Anyone know a good company?

NoSuchAgency - November 12, 2017, 12:17 pm

Looking to get some merch made for a couple brands. Where would I be able to find great quality custom clothing? They would be sold on an online shop. I would make them per order most likely (unless there was a good bulk deal)

Anything come to mind? I'm talking like all these clothing sites that are opening up, what are they using? I don't want any shit material.

Infact if we could get shirts made with hemp and cotton that would be amazing. Any suggestions?

Thanks!

Sasaki Haise - November 13, 2017, 11:24 am

I've been looking at the same thing, I've personally used Independent Trading Company and Royal Apparel. They are both VERY good mid tier quality hoodies. If you want to cheap out and give your clients a cheaper alternative, I prefer Hanes, Fruit of the Loom, & Gildan. You can probably partner up with other brands like American Apparel & Champion etc. Just make sure you get your licensing out to get whole sale prices for higher mark-ups.

NoSuchAgency - November 14, 2017, 6:37 pm

(Nov 13, 2017 12:24 PM)Sasaki Haise Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've been looking at the same thing, I've personally used Independent Trading Company and Royal Apparel. They are both VERY good mid tier quality hoodies. If you want to cheap out and give your clients a cheaper alternative, I prefer Hanes, Fruit of the Loom, & Gildan. You can probably partner up with other brands like American Apparel & Champion etc. Just make sure you get your licensing out to get whole sale prices for higher mark-ups.Hell yeah dude thanks! ??

Kyrus - November 16, 2017, 4:42 pm

I know Independent makes wholesale blank clothing.

Just go and hire someone to embroid shit on them.