Thread: Purchasing a usergroup for \$4000

Bombaclut - November 13, 2017, 9:21 am

@Owners - I am not going to increase my bid. Don't try and persuade me to either. You will cover the transfer fees and maybe we can setup a payment plan for that if you don't feel comfortable in doing so. I am not approved but will be private messaging a few members in regards to holding it till Omniscient makes a decision. This is a VALID offer.

The objective of the group will be for marketers and product seller whom are big in the community, ie - Formula1, Vyrez, Chief Bromden, Sonex, Qtum and so on.

I will not sell the group for years to come and that's a fact.

Let me know privately please.

Interesting. I wish you the best of luck with your purchase.

So you intend on spending $4,000 for a group, just to put ebook sellers in - what good would that do them or the community? Your group idea serves no logical purpose, lol.

Will I be invited if I start selling 5 e-books? Good luck with purchasing a group. I find the idea a bit strange but it will be your group so you can do whatever you want with it.

Best of luck with your purchase, I just hope it doesn't become another failure.

Copy-writing, marketing strategies, ect ect.

So it'll be a combination of these two?

My bad, didn't want to sound like a retard.

We will provide marketing equipment and contribute assets that are key in the business world.

Will be an open group actually. For all. I've changed my mind.

I'll hopefully be purchasing Factor8's group.

Well let's see when this happens. Read so many claims of this same thing. Then it turns to be buyins. Then its classes you have to pay for. Then its this that and the other.

If I ever sell buy-ins, I will owe you $5,000.

Screenshot this for proof.

Hmmm, best of luck, ignore the autistic brokebois who are trying to trash your thread lmao

Nosi - November 17, 2017, 6:20 am

LMAO, wondering what his next Account name is.
