Thread: France may set age of consent at 13 after man acquitted of raping 11yo

<https://www.rt.com/news/409794-france-consent-age-introduce/>

Quote:The French government is considering setting the minimum age for sexual consent following a controversial decision by a jury to spare a man accused of raping an 11-year-old girl. The verdict has sparked a public outcry and calls to revise the law.

The bill, if adopted, will set a benchmark in French law on sexual violence, as it will for the first time define the age limit under which any sexual intercourse with a minor is legally considered rape.

Not really

It's not like the bill will ever go through anyway so the people of France don't need to be worried about this news

Yes ofcourse french..why doesnt that supriseme

Petty - November 19, 2017, 11:21 am i think thats alright! If a 13 year old wants to have sex they should be allowed to.

I know i wanted to when i was 13, and did.

The law shouldnt determine who can consent. It should be based on sexual maturity.

btw its 12 in mexico and non existent in a lot of other countries.

i dont think you know what the word pedo means.

being attracted to sexually mature teens is not pedophilia.

A child can be sexually mature but not mentally ready to have sex so that would be a problem if the law was based on sexual maturity a child may also not mentally be ready to ride a roller coaster after a certain height.

Sorry but that's a terrible analogy, and I don't think being horny means you're ready for sex.

being horny and able to reproduce means you're ready for sex. the ability to consent.. i can agree thats a mental thing but not everybody matures mentally at the same time.

Girls mature mentally exceptionally faster than boys. When i was 16 i had this 14 year old fuck buddy neighbor and she was so ready bro.

i speak not only from experience but just plain old nature and science.

While 13/14 may be too young for some, others are at not only the sexual maturity of a 16 year old but mentally mature as well.

I believe the ability to consent plays a significant role in being ready for sex or not. There can be early bloomers who are too young to know what theyre getting into.

I don't really feel like starting a whole debate about this, all I really wanted to say is that I'm convinced basing the law on sexual maturity will cause problems because it's something that's not the same for every person yeah yeah but neither is the age. did you at least check the age of consent laws across the world on page one?

Yeah. The whole point of laws is to create general rules, and courts can work out the details. Basing the law on sexual maturity would mean there should be some medical test that ad-hoc decided the 'legal age' for every individual person or some shit like that.

Not to mention many different morals in cultures. Like that Papua New Guinean tribe where to become mature you have to drink the semen of older male figures.

I say keep it the same, at least it puts a line in the sand, with the age of consent at 13, it would bring far more problems than actually solve.

I'm gone well past the age limit but I'm still not mentally mature. When is that actually suppose to come into effect?

julionunez - December 2, 2017, 7:53 am

People who think 13 year olds legally being able to have sex is a good idea are fucking retarded.

So if a 13 year old can legally have sex, they can legally have a child? In that case, as a parent, am I now responsible for that child since a 13 year old won't be able to support it?

So now the parents of children have unwanted children forced upon them, and they must take care of them? Or we just use a whole bunch of tax money and have the government raise the children, because that always turns out well and totally doesn't result in state indoctrination amongst a whole host of other ill societal effects.

Or wait I forgot, liberals like to have abortions instead of raising children. Ok, so now who pays for that? The state? Taxpayers? The parents?

Am I also responsible for their medical bills if they get an std as well?

That isn't even to mention that studies dating back to the mid 1900's have shown that human beings that age don't have the mental capacity to understand long term consequences like someone a few years older does. Your brain is half developed at 18. Fully developed at 25 typically. A 13 year old is easily manipulated, and won't see the consequences of their actions.

Europe is fucked. Being flooded with Muslims who have no respect for the native population or the culture, sucking up massive amounts of welfare and having children who will do the same (IQ is almost entirely genetic and the average IQ of the middle east is in the mid to high 80's compared to Europeans 100). Now they want to legalize sex for 13 year olds after they let off some idiot scott free for raping an 11 year old? That on top of all the absolutely ridiculous censorship of anything critical of government on the internet or otherwise.

Let it burn.
