Snagged a 2004 datejust today!

Has the new style two-tone jubilee band with a fluted bezel and a Blue Vignette diamond dial. All factory ?

Nice, how much did you get it for?

Love the old jubilee bracelets, but man my GMT is timeless.

Hustla - November 28, 2017, 9:28 pm

That's a clean watch with a nice shine to it in the flash.

$7,000--Searched around for awhile and found essentially the same watch with a black diamond dial instead for $8k (& only 1 year newer ('05)).

The watch retails new at the Rolex store for $13k + tax so roughly $14.5k depending on your states tax.

Seeing as the one I bought was in really good condition as well as having box and papers unlike the more expensive one (costing you $500 from Rolex if you want to replace the papers and get a new box once authenticated), I was happy with it. They also don't make the Blue Vignette dials anymore so it's nice to have something that'll one day be considered a vintage.

Edit: I really like the jubilee bands as well, second favorite next to the presidential. The new styles are really what convinced me to get this watch, they started doing the hidden style band 2004 and on.

Don't want to upset you, but it's fake. Doesn't have "Rolex" around the inner bezel.

It's a 2004 Datejust, they didn't start doing the Rolex engraving on the inner bezel until post 2007.

If my Rolex had inner graving it would be fucking fake because they hadn't started doing that yet in 2004 so please don't say stupid shit without at least checking google ???

Besides, can't any rolex store check for authenticity?

Great watch my friend, I will own my first Rolex by the end of 2018 :)

Yeah you can take it into any Rolex retailer and they'll gladly check your watch out for you. The lady at the store didn't even need to open my watch up to tell me it was real and I've shown it to plenty of people in jewelry stores I visit

Which Rolex you thinking about buying?

ProToBe1990 - January 2, 2018, 11:14 pm

My plan is actually to walk into the Rolex store and get the one that speaks to me then.

<https://m.rolex.com/watches/submariner/m116619lb-0001.html> Tbh bro just buy a pre owned one in good condition with all factory parts & original documents. Obviously if you hit it big buy it from the store, I'm sure it's a great feeling but you can find some nearly perfect pre-owned ones for 40% off retail. My boy for example got an early 2000's Presidential with a diamond dial in almost unused condition for $14-15k yet its retail price in the Rolex store is $28,650 (without any diamonds/stones).

Hell yeah man just checked it out, the Milgauss is honestly not given enough credit. The second hand is just so nice and all around a classy watch w/ the green accents. I wish Rolex did more second hand customizations albeit at the same time I guess that's what makes models like the Milgauss so unique.

Congrats on the AMG as well bro lmao be snagging my C7 Stingray in the next coming months ?

Orlovicem - January 12, 2018, 6:42 am

BobYako - May 23, 2018, 4:31 pm

Damn, that's an incredible watch.

Although I don't think I could ever justify spending that much on a watch, I can appreciate it for what it is.

fraudst3r - May 27, 2018, 10:02 am

Nice purchase OP, I'm hoping to gain enough money to purchase myself a Rolex as well. Hopefully in a few months it will be me posting in this section.

Chazagetcha - May 27, 2018, 11:25 am

Sir-Teabag - May 27, 2018, 11:27 am

Fucking beauty of a watch mate! Congratulations!

I can't wait to get a decent watch. Until I can afford a Rolex i'll just save for an Omega for now ;D

How did you get the funds to afford yours?

SaddamHussein - May 27, 2018, 3:11 pm

I'm debating about a Rolex or an Omega, you got a nice Rolex tho
