Used to play Quake way back in the day but I haven't heard much about it now

Pretty sure there are still people playing Quake Live. You should give that a look-see.

There are, but they kind of tanked the population by making it pay to play for everybody besides those who played it while it was F2P. I wouldn't say $10 is much to spend on Quake, but it's probably off-putting to a lot of people who would otherwise be interested. It's just barely more alive than Champions, but I remember it being a pretty solid 1,000+ most of the time.

I'll never understand why they decided to make it pay to play, there were plenty of people paying monthly to keep the game afloat.
