Thread: Hypothetical post, hypothetically posted of course

Hello to whoever may read this. I didnt read the rules or anything of the sort but heres to hoping none of my questions are taboo. First question, lets say i hypothetically had a lists of credit card information from several different people (including card holders name, zip, address, etc). What would be the best way to buy things online and not get caught? Also where? Note ive tried using amazon but the site has some security that requires more info than i can provide same for sites like paypal (you would think the card number would be enough). Ive been able to book flights from Argentina to Columbia and other places to other places but besides just plane tickets and free ubers i was trying to score things for the resell, anything from gift cards to game credits. Also working logistics on getting things ordered in, but it runs the highest risk of getting caught. Any ideas or suggestions on that would be appreciated. is a P.O. Box secure? Should i just send them to an abandoned house and play stake out? Any security loose online sellers is basically what im looking for... hypothetically of course.

Second Im not too familiar at all with bit coins but I was wondering if I could buy them directly with a credit card? If so where and how? Also would like something reliable besides some shady onion link.

Also trying to set up a phone on my computer so i can make calls from my computer, and have my number appear to be from somewhere else. (perferably where ever i want)

Thats about it, if you can help hit me up with a private message, if you actually help, id be down to send you a 100$ gift card soon as i can purchase some. Also willing to give you a random credit card number if you prefer. Honestly just need some help so i dont fuck up and get arrested.... hypothetically of course.

This is not permitted in the forum. Please refrain from posting anything related to this ever again.

And no, saying it's hypothetical like a retard will not save you from jail.

I hypothetically wonder how long it will take for you to get closed.

I hypothetically wonder how long it will take for you to get caught, considering you're a minecrafter lul.
