Thread: [\[TUT\] Setting up Gaudox HTTP on shared hosting](#)

xscatta - December 6, 2017, 4:02 am

Hi!

In this guide I'll walk you through the process of setting up Gaudox
First I'll be doing it on shared hosting, just because I see a lot of threads asking for help.

Step 1: Preparing

Download Gaudox <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5657041>

Get ur host ready, I'll be using Wr-Retail his servers because I can, and because they allow botnets
But for shared hosting I would advice <https://area6.ru/index.html> because they allow botnets

Log in to your managing panel

Upload all the files in the Panel folder to your httpdocs folder.

Make a new MySQL database,

In your files, go to root and open setup.php and fill in the details

Set the SQL host to localhost and SQL user/password to the once you used make the database.
For dbname enter the name you entered while making a database
Go to you builder folder and run the builder, fill in all the info you need. this one shouldn't be hard.

Once you save your profile you will get the keys you need.
When you build your bin, copy the Encryption / Decryption key as you need this.
Back in your setup.php, add the Encryption / Decryption key in the key location.

Go to <http://yourdomain.com/login.php>

The login details you just made in the setup.php
The captcha is case sensitive
Go to your files again and delete setup.php

There you go! all set up :)

The output bin is most likely not going to be FUD, and will probably require a crypter.
If you aren't sure if the crypter you are using is compatible with the bot, it's best to ask the seller/developer of the crypter.

If you are struggling to get this set up, feel free to contact me!

I set mine exactly like this but it doesn't report when I test, is there anything else I have to do?

AnonTri - December 6, 2017, 12:47 pm

Setup the bot correctly. if you are using a non standard port make the url of the panel in builder as 1.1.1.1:1234 and leave the port in the builder as 80

Great tutorial. Keep up the good work!

Great share mate! I am looking to getting into the Botnet realm. I was wondering if you could make money off this? In an example, I have 200$ do you think that is enough to make me a profit? With a host, botnet, crypter, miners and all of those expenses. Thank you Cheers, ?

It really depends. Im running a Gaudox Botnet (for maybe a few days) and it costed about $250 to get a proper setup, FUD Crypt, Miners, etc. Im willing to go into a partnership though and make money with you, its always better with someone working with you! Please contact me asap, Im fairly new too so we'd be learning together, though I know enough to have set this botnet up lol.

Jabber : chapo@exploit.im

Or just PM me!

All depends how you make the money.

If you're thinking of XMR mining then it mostly depends on how long ur bot stays FUD and how good ur spreading is.

If u need any help just jabber me

I said that <https://www.openleaf.net.ru> shared hosting works in the thread, and then litterally follow the guide.

Can jabber me if u need more help.

TheWolf™ - December 8, 2017, 8:31 am

Sweet! I'll send you a Jabbar! I am familiar with the whole RAT thing but very new and curious about Botnet.

Cheers, ?

Plesk Webhost changed to trial, and it's very broken, please update the thread with the new webhost which allows botnets, btw the thread isn't dead yet, 5 months from there.

area6 still allows botnets, that hasn't changed.

Plesk also still works, this is an issue on your side.

You are basically, using other computers to mine crypto currency for you?

Also...what is a "crypter"?
