Thread: Btc is almost 20,000\$. will it reach 100,000\$ in the end of 2020?

vaxton - December 17, 2017, 5:12 am

Get ready guys to be a millionaire!

Btc has been increased from 3,000$ to 20,000$ in less than 2 years!
do you think it will reach 100,000$ by the next 2 years?

i will invest all my money in btc, selling my car and many other things just to spend them on btc.

how about you guys? how much did you invest?

SIM-3467872 - December 17, 2017, 5:17 am

I don't think it's a good idea to put all your money on bitcoins. We may see bitcoin will reach $50k in 2018 but $100,000 will take some time maybe years.

i think you have a duplicated program, PM a staff to remove it

There is no guarantee that it will surely reach $50k.

JELLY?IsH - December 17, 2017, 5:24 am

In my opinion, BTC won't live till 2020.

Zakarum - December 17, 2017, 5:26 am

Maybe it will reach $100.000 but it will drop for sure until then. Many expect a huge fall in the near future and when that happens, be sure to buy as much as you are willing to risk.

hf should make a thread spam detect means 1 thread per 5 mins.

and why it wont reach 50k?
it should rise more since btc is well-known now and many rich people are buying it.

To nearly every user who commented on this thread:

Please refer to following thread by Omni: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5768935>

Bitcoin has failed, and its only value right now, is its popularity.

Bitcoin will not reach 50k. If you're selling your car to invest in Bitcoin, you might as well get a tattoo saying "Retard" on your forehead.

EDIT: And please stop spreading this absolute bullshit. Your thread is toxic.

Please.. Don't go all-in on something like Bitcoin with the current state of things. Just the fact that so many people are speculating that it's a bubble confirms that it's a bubble. A bubble like this can last years though..

Just because rich people are buying it doesn't mean that it will continue rising. It just needs a trigger to start a panic sell-off. Any sort of big news.

Sure, it may hit $50k. It may hit $100k. It may hit $300k. But the more it goes up, the harder it is going to crash when it does crash.. And it'll be impossible to time the crash. Might be a few weeks from now, might be a few months, might be years. Nobody really knows. But look in the past, before BTC even became "Mainstream", and there were mainly just "believers" of Bitcoin, Mt Gox caused a huge crash. The China bans caused a pretty big crash.

Everyone right now is just wanting a "piece of the cake". And they're desperate to not miss out so they are re-mortgaging their homes, putting their life savings into this in an attempt to earn some quick money, with no "fall-back" if it does start dropping.

Do you think when their LIFE SAVINGS of $50k worth of Bitcoins are suddenly worth $40k after ONE day (if there's a big drop), that they're not going to sell at $40k to make sure they don't lose EVERYTHING?

These people don't even know what Bitcoin is and what the purpose of it is. They're in it for the money, they don't understand the market or the technology itself. They're not used to the 10%-40% drops that can happen in one day. They WILL panic sell IF the price does start dropping. And not to mention how easily the price can be affected by news. Or if a big exchange such as Coinbase got hacked. Or if the whole Tether situation was a fraud.

The question is, if you sold your car and put your life savings in, let's say you have $20k worth of BTC from that. Would you not sell if it started dropping every hour? $19k, $18k, $17k, $16k, all you're going to be thinking is "Am I going to lose all my money" and "When is the drop going to stop".

Now I'm not saying don't do it. It's your money, do whatever you want with it. But think about the POSSIBLE outcomes. If you want to gamble, feel free. But it's gambling. Unless you have the ability to stay strong through it all, I do think IF/WHEN the bubble bursts, that it will recover, but it could take some time.

well said, i understand.. i got 0.8btc right now.. i will sell them when btc reach 25k$.. that will give me some profits.

but if btc is dead then what will happen to all those people who sold their house for btc?
some people in my country do blowjobs for btc.. weed will no longer be sold with btc.

what crypto will be there instead of btc?

It seems pretty trivial to me; they will be homeless.

There is no way in saying which crypto will survive. Might be XMR, might be PAY,...

I think in the next months iota ethereum etc will get bigger, because of the effeiciency and many other things that btc can't keep up with. Thats just my theory

BTC is no longer about efficiency. It's a store of value. And BTC rules the whole Crypto market since that's the biggest trading pair for all crypto's.

But sure, ETH will probably continue growing, and so will other things in the alt market

PublicAgent - December 17, 2017, 6:53 am

What do you mean by 2020? We will reach it at the end of 2018! :D

Immortale - December 17, 2017, 1:43 pm

In my point of view invest all money into a crypto currency is not a good idea but as I can understand you have already did :) when you have some income it's good idea to withdraw some amount of earn and let works your gain, be carefully with money the first rule is DO NOT BE GREEDY!

I have invested an amount that I can permit to lose.

A store of value as the main trading base pair is dangerous but theoretically as people start to "value" it more (price action goes up) the price will just go up and up and up especially with the limited supply and it being a digital asset.

Lmao. To be honest I've only seen a few people who actually called the beginning of a bear market in '17 December (Chris Dunn, the fagg0t of Charlie Lee, etc).

Everyone did dumb predictions back then. They weren't the first and they won't be the last.

No, you're correct, people will still make dumb decisions regarding crypto, there are plenty "to the moon" mongoloids still around to fill that gap.
