

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Group Suggestion: Inquiry board.

Kuso - December 22, 2017, 5:29 am

There are actually some useful groups on the forums having honed skills. I thought maybe it can be beneficial for both both the non-group and group users to have a way to interact.

Creating a board where we can possibly request jobs done until a member responds to that post on the board. There can definitely be more to do. Also simple group public pollings and contest that sometimes are done elsewhere can add a bit to each group's own vibe by having their own public part of the board showing up on the new post would probably make me for sure check it out.

The board would be a section from the group that can be open or closed to the public. Just a thought for something interactive between the non-group and groups.

Omniscient - December 22, 2017, 12:30 pm

Quote: I thought maybe it can be beneficial for both both the non-group and group users to have a way to interact.

What do you think this website is?

Quote: Creating a board where we can possibly request jobs done until a member responds to that post on the board.

We have forum categories already that fit that description.

Cylow - December 22, 2017, 12:51 pm

So you want a forum exactly like Hackforums?