Social media like twitter and Instagram will get you there quick.

Target the right audience, know where to promote, network.

This! I follow rappers on Facebook and I see them selling beats to producers all the time. Just spam add/follow on Facebook.

Social media is top advertiser right now for anything media. I suggest getting an Instagram account with a good amount of followers and commenting on big people's posts like "My music will make you wet" or something that stands out and gets someone to click on your Instagram and actually give it a listen. The algorithm for instagram is a person with a good amount of following or "relevance" will be seen in the comments by regular followers of the popular poster. Everyone is a victim of this, but noticing it is a whole different thing.

1. Make good beats.
2. Work with people who have already established a good fanbase/following.

Try uploading your beats on youtube and Soundclick!

Soundcloud or YT is the best for beat promoting, but I'd recommend Spotify for song promoting if you wanna take it seriously.
