"I'm one of the student who under your examined" What I want to tell is the lecturer is my examiner, how to rephrase or correct this sentence? Thank you nicksaban1 - January 4, 2018, 8:18 am

I am one of the students from your lecture
I am a student of yours
I am a student who took your exam
You are one of my teachers (or instructors)

"you sir are my lecturer also my examiner"

"I'm one of the students who wrote the exam under your invigilation/supervision"

"I'm one of your students who was there in your exam hall"

OP did you notice we both have same amount of +rep :-p

Thanks for everyone help

Actually I'm trying to recall the examiner. How should I write an email telling him that I'm one of the student under him? He is not my supervisor, he is just giving marks for my presentation & project

Haha now u have more rep than me

"I am one of your students." is what you should say, unless I misunderstood something.

"I'm one of the students you examined"

Seem like this answer more suitable for me

Thx everyone.

I'll say a small story.

After posting the reply that you quoted, I saw my rep was increased by +2. I was used to +1s and +3s but this time I was confused because no rating were added to the list. But in seconds I guessed that someone who gave me +rep while they were L33t just updated the rating to +3. I also guessed that was OP. :-P His 7th rating after becoming an upgraded member was to me and we are speaking after some long time.he now have 257 given ratings (Previous rating on 2011 he edited it fully I couldn't recall about our conversation). If someone else other than OP had changed the rating without the update edit it would be almost impossible to find.

story end.

;P

Yea, previously I have +rep you when I was l33t (you're giving free install that time).

Oh I just know there is a "Given" rep function on HF.
