Thread: why do users buy bulk amounts of amazon gift cards?

Cash - January 4, 2018, 1:19 pm

I'm just curious as to why many users on here buy as much AGC as they can, I mean obviously they can buy $100 cards for like $65-$75 but then what are they doing with like a $1000+ worth of amazon

Selling them for higher % or buying items at a discount and reselling them most likely.

purse.io

they make money from that xd

I've been wondering about this too tbh.

I always just thought they buy physical items at a discount & sell them for profit?

That was what I was doing and it worked great but I've got scammed with about $600 in 2 days and I decided to stop

They are converting the virtual currency into real cash / product without paying the tax

Hope this explains you more clear

This is true, but the larger buyers get better sell rates, over 80%. There are greyhat ways to greatly increase the profits. Lastly, as another user explained, basically reselling goods gets you a decent 15% profit. It's not an income but it works hella good as beer money.

I'm still wondering this lmao

AFAIK.

1. Purse.io

2. Get products and resell at a higher rate. Buy a PS4 at 70% rate for AGC (standard rate on HF, if not the best one), resell for 95-100%, easy 20% profit ($330 PS4 for 230$ cryptocurrency, resell in real life for 330$, easy 100$).

At 70% per gift card I could get one for $196.
