M?xim - January 4, 2018, 10:59 pm

He's giving other users an unfair shot at the marketplace (not me personally, i sticky all my sales threads). Not cool.

What people do to get some sales... Have a look:

First of all, what is the user Meow selling?

[> \[ABSOLUTE DOXING\] \[ULTIMATE DOXING & DE-TRACING GUIDE\] \[50+ PAGES\] \[30+ METHODS\] <](#)

[> \[ABSOLUTE INCOME\] \[UP TO \$5,000+/MONTH\] \[STEP BY STEP\] \[SUCCESS OR 100% REFUND\] <](#)

[=> \[EXACT BLUEPRINT THAT MADE ME \$9,762 LAST MONTH\] \[LIMITED COPIES\] \[#1 PROGRAM\] <=](#)

What is the real template that his buyers should use when posting on his thread(s) to get the download link?

Quote:Transaction ID: #07aec8f9fd30

E-mail: p.jm*2@gmail.com

Package: Elite

How am i sure that this template is the real one?

You can lookup the order ID here and it'll return actual information.

Compare that to other ID's at his threads and you will get the error "Order not found".

What signals that someone who's posting on one of his threads are one of his multis?

No real / no order ID.

Only online for 30 minutes.

Asking stupid questions.

Only posted on one of Meow's threads.

Who are his known multis?

Meow - January 4, 2018, 11:01 pm

Yeah, those are actual customers who I regularly sent marketing emails (thru rocketr). I sent them new email when I launched my new ebook
(I have an email list)

Future Millionaire1 is my friends account who I told to join HF (I suggested him that name for the lols, I actually showed Formula his instagram profile and me & him together. He is my irl friend).

Copywriter - January 4, 2018, 11:07 pm

Pretty much 100% of eBook sellers have a network of those to bump, if not friends to do so.

Take this multi for example: TryingToHelp - 17 posts on your doxing ebook.

Look at the posts.

And:

On this post, order ID that does not exist in Rocketr's database. ( <https://rocketr.net/track/?order=6d4d1297btb>)

On this post, no order ID.

The account has been online for 3 hours. Has 58 posts where probably 50% is on your threads.

None of those guys are my friends lol (no offense), Future Millionaire1 is my friend but since he is closed, because of me, he can't join HF anymore.

The only person i'm "close" to is Ozyaz, he was a support agent for my 1st ebook and he buys my ebooks religiously because he likes them & they've been working for him. I'm sure he can go into details himself. I can send him a message on skype or email him since I know he has a tough situation home and doesn't come on HF often (<- his words)

I remember why he didn't post his order ID on his 2nd thread, he said that he's scared that someone might see his paypal email and "hack him". I think I can find our discord conversations (if needed) to prove it.

Nice finds Maxim. Not really too suprised to see.

Even if you can explain it all why isn't it against the rules to tell your 20 friends to constantly bump your posts?

I never told any of them to bump (except my friend) my threads with shit, they all do it themselves. I know I can't prove it but I talked regularly with all those guys over email/skype/discord. I think Ozyaz even has my iMessage since he was support agent for me before.

EDIT: And no, I don't have any kind of "support server" or anything like that where I 'store' all my customers and ask them for bumps. I think anyone who ever purchased any of my products can vouch for that.

So your 20 friends just constantly bump your threads with stupid questions for no appareant coercing by yourself? I mean you could be telling the truth but it's improbable unless they are seeking your favor.

I told every single one of them to message me and not to post on the thread because that way thread looks very unprofessional but whenever I don't reply within minutes they post on the thread. I don't have control over that but I try to be nice and help them, since they spent money on my products.

Are you now an expert on multis and the HF marketplace? I'm not questioning the fact you're knowledgeable about rules, but your sales tell me you have no clue about customers or selling things on Hackforums. On top of that, those users posted on several other threads beside Meow's guides.

This is a clear character hit on Meow intended to trash his sales and increase yours (Why else would you mention that you're selling stuff on the very first line of the thread?). I really thought you were better than this.

I don't think im that low, you have screenshot in pages before where you can see my & Ozyaz's conversation. I can even give you his phone number if he allows me to.

I knew this was going to come sooner or later (by this i mean CA on me by Maxim), he is just too mad at me because he doesn't know how to take a joke. Not to mention he tells his friends to PM me (I should maybe word it "threaten") to stop what I'm doing. Can show PM's upon requests.

But it is true, there are probably 100 times worse cases than this, where ebook sellers are using some shady techniques in getting bumps but that's for another story.

It's funny how Maxim stopped replying just after Trappy exposed him for sales & bumps.

Don't you all have something better to do other than argue for the entire morning over eBooks, vouches and whatnot?

Your Community Alert won't change a thing.
Meow might be guilty. Meow might not be guilty.

However there's a fact here.
You are undoubtedly pointing out Meow when there's loads of similar people in the eBook Bazaar that might or might not be guilty for their shady eBook business and uncommon vouches and whatnot from what I've seen.

Let's face the reality here. Reality is that eBooks will keep selling.

As long as people believe in quick money dreams, eBooks will sell.

As such, the only result of this community alert is that you're garnering attention (Which I suppose is what you're after) and just putting someone down to appear more "HQ" yourself.

I kinda dislike the whole "HF warrior" act.

see, now that a community alert was initiated on meow for using multis, he either feels like he's been caught or he is staying cool thinking about the attention created. He tries to prove that the claim was a false one in a decent way of posting proofs. Also It's unfair to conclude that Maxim posted this thread to degrade the ebook sales of meow and boost his. Maybe Maxim not care at all and just tries to confirm what made him feel like getting cornered by a network while he wants to play the good boy role and wants to calmly mention the cornering to a network he's a part of. :-)
